

What Does A Home Inspection Include?

Quality Home Inspections report will review the visible condition of the home's structure, foundation, roof, basement, and grading, heating, and air-conditioning systems, electrical, plumbing, appliances, attic and visible insulation, ceiling, floors, windows and doors.

All reports are computer generated in a standard electronic format and are comprehensive, including photographs of defects and deficiencies. To help control costs we do not supply photos in addition to those provided in the inspection report itself. Sample reports available on our website. Quality Home Inspections performs all inspections to the American Society of Home Inspection - Standard of Practice & Code of Ethics.

12720 Castlewood Dr. Wichita, Kansas 67206

Quality Home Inspections, LLC will conduct a visual examination of the subject dwelling to determine the general condition and operability of components listed in the report as inspected.

The report and inspection is an observation of conditions prevailing at the time of inspection is made and in no way is to be considered as a guarantee or warranty regarding the subject dwelling or any of its components.

Quality Home Inspections, LLC makes no representation regarding compliance with any governmental building, electrical or other codes.

Bonded and Insured

We are never in a hurry to get the job done. Typically, no more than two inspections are scheduled on any given day, allowing time for a thorough inspection. Our clients deserve nothing less.

With two ASHI Home Inspectors, our office manager Gerri can schedule your property inspection quickly at your convenience. Evenings and weekends available!

Payment can be made with cash, check, pay apps or credit card.

Why Choose Quality Home Inspections?

Our Qualifications

Francis Silveira has over 35 years of experience in Home Maintenance and has an HVAC Wichita city license for 35+ years. He has installed hundreds of HVAC units and has experience in electrical work. But Francis' expertise extends to smaller home systems as well, logging more than 1000 hot water heaters and kitchen appliance installations and repairs. What's more, Francis has experience in a wide range of household repairs, covering everything from the simple to complex.

He has also completed his residential inspections training at ASHI (American Society of Home Inspectors) affiliated school and is a full member of ASHI.

Bert Kennedy, who has returned to Wichita, is a professional home inspector for Quality Home Inspections LLC. He is an ASHI (American Society of Home Inspectors) Inspector.

Bert's general construction expertise derives from over 30+ years in home building, renovating and renting in Colorado, California and Kansas. His core strength is in his attention to detail, assessment and scope of a home's structural design and innate ability to identify and troubleshoot problem areas.

Previously in Kansas he worked as an engineer with Boeing and simultaneously owned and operated an irrigation company "About Water". While Bert enjoys all aspects involving real estate his previous employment for which he retired early was diverse in telecommunications as an engineer in fiber optics, network design, software and hardware applications, project management and customer care excellence. He was a member and resided on the Board of Directors of the prestigious Society of Cable Telecommunications Engineers group in California.

Little Spaces = Big Quality Inspection

Francis has one critical advantage over most other home inspectors: his small physical stature permits him access to tight places where few adults can fit. He can slither through narrow crawlspaces and squeeze through undersized openings to spot hidden clues about a home's true condition. Francis can gather a wealth of photo evidence from these hideaways to document findings of importance to the client.
