Turn in your Idiom Hunt.
Nothing else! Hooray!

Island of the Blue Dolphins TEST on Friday

We have finished reading the book, and now it is time to study for the test! Please checkout Test Support for the Island of the Blue Dolphins test on our website. This week we will spend time together in class choosing the 7 main plot events (rising actions, climax, and the resolution). We will also focus on main characters, setting, main conflict and resolution. Also, we will prepare to write about a theme for the book and about how Karana changed throughout the book. Please check out the examples for both of these essays on the class website. Each night the students will be given a specific way to study for the test. They will bring the required evidence that they studied to school each day. Along with this evidence, all students must get a parent signature Monday through Thursday night to verify that s/he studied for the test.

BECAUSE OF THE TEST..

No Spelling Words

no math facts

No Word Power or Word Hunt

NO Reading Log

Less math (in school only)

We will be continuing to practice long division.

Idiom Hunt this week

We talked A LOT about idioms last week! They are weird and wacky for sure!

This week we will not do our regular word hunt. Instead, we will be hunting for idioms.

You can find idioms written in books of course. But another good source is listening when people talk. We use them all the time. Doing a Google search for idioms is NOT allowed. So get your ears tuned to noticing idioms. Your goal is to find 15 or more.
