Cancer Panels

ATCC Tumor Cell Panels are powerful tools to accelerate discoveries in cancer research. The individual cell lines in the panels possess unique genomic and expression signatures that may be useful targets for study. Incorporating multiple, well-characterized cell lines in your experiments allows you to accelerate the identification of novel treatments and diagnostic biomarkers. Panels of tumor cell lines are also valuable in compound screening, biomarker selection, pathway analysis, and targeted therapeutic development.

The panels are grouped by either tissue of tumor origin or by molecular signature.
