Almighty God, you have made us for yourself, and our hearts are restless till they find their rest in you: pour your love into our hearts and draw us to yourself, and so bring us at last to your heavenly city where we shall see you face to face; through Jesus Christ your Son our Lord. Amen

The Readings:

Exodus 20: 1 – 20; Philippians 3: 4 – 14; Matthew 21: 33 – end

Reflection

Our readings today include the parable of the wicked vineyard tenants. Matthew is now in a section of his gospel where he is making it quite clear that the attitude of the scribes and pharisees is wrong - they are quite clearly the “wicked tenants” in this parable, the ones who abused and killed all the owner’s servants, messengers and even his son. They were on shaky moral ground! In a marvellous piece of verbal chess-playing a little earlier, Jesus has established they can’t challenge him openly (even though he has recently smashed up the stalls in the temple) because the people believe he is a prophet and has God's authority (which he does!). Its worth reading chapters 20 to 23 all in one go to get the full force of Jesus' argument against them. Ouch it must smart and be humiliating! In this parable he asks them what would the landowner do to those wicked tenants? They reply, "he will put them to a horrible death and get others to tend the vineyard" Then when they realise the parable is about themselves they see they've suggested their own punishment! Ha ha – jolly well serves them right! That's my immediate response I'm slightly ashamed to admit. But what we see through a longer lens is that Jesus is the Son – he has taken that horrible death prescribed and God in all goodness has opened the vineyard for all people - not only the new tenants (Jesus' followers) but even perhaps those original tenants should they only see who he is. Thank you, God that you are grace, and truth. That your justice is always tempered with mercy and you give as Jesus deserves not as we do. Help us to live lives marked by Jesus' love and challenge. Amen
