Raymond Giles | Regal Luxury Travel with Raymond

Luxury travel is often associated with five-star hotels, first-class flights, and exclusive destinations. Raymond Giles believes luxury is something much simpler. It is the confidence that comes from knowing every detail has been thoughtfully planned and that someone is available to advocate for you before, during, and after your journey.

That philosophy led Raymond to establish Regal Luxury Travel with Raymond, a veteran-owned luxury travel concierge based in Kingwood, Texas. Rather than focusing solely on reservations, Raymond works closely with each client to understand their goals, travel style, and expectations before creating a personalized itinerary designed around their individual needs.

Raymond's perspective is shaped by experiences well beyond the travel industry. A former United States Navy submariner and graduate of the Navy Nuclear Power Program, he later built an international career in quality assurance, living and working in Finland and Saudi Arabia while traveling extensively throughout Europe, Asia, the Middle East, Australia, and North America. Those experiences developed an appreciation for cultural differences, meticulous planning, and the importance of building trusted relationships.

Today, Raymond specializes in luxury vacations, destination weddings, honeymoons, executive travel, river and ocean cruises, and customized international itineraries. Through preferred relationships with leading luxury travel partners, clients often receive exclusive amenities at participating hotels, resorts, and cruise lines while benefiting from personalized recommendations and concierge-level service.

Raymond is also an author and contributor to multiple published works focused on leadership, service, resilience, and personal growth. His writing reflects the same philosophy that guides his business: meaningful experiences are created through preparation, relationships, and a willingness to invest in what matters most.

As a frequent participant in travel industry conferences, leadership events, and veteran business organizations, Raymond remains engaged with emerging travel trends and continually expands his professional network. These relationships provide valuable insight into new destinations, luxury hospitality, and travel experiences that ultimately benefit his clients.
