

Raymond Giles to Attend 2026 Military Influencer Conference

TAMPA BAY, Florida – Raymond Giles, founder of Regal Luxury Travel with Raymond, will attend the 2026 Military Influencer Conference, joining veterans, active duty service members, entrepreneurs, nonprofit leaders, and industry professionals from across the country.

The annual conference serves as one of the nation's premier gatherings for the military community, providing opportunities to collaborate, share ideas, strengthen professional relationships, and explore new ways to support veterans through business, leadership, and advocacy.

As a United States Navy veteran and entrepreneur, Raymond looks forward to connecting with veteran owned businesses, industry leaders, and organizations dedicated to creating opportunities for those who have served. The conference also provides an opportunity to exchange ideas, discover new resources, and build partnerships that support both the veteran community and small businesses.

"One of the greatest strengths of the military community is the willingness to help one another succeed," said Giles. "The Military Influencer Conference brings together people who are committed to service long after they leave the uniform, and I am honored to be part of that community."

Participation in the conference reflects Raymond's continued commitment to lifelong learning, professional development, and supporting fellow veterans while expanding opportunities to better serve clients, businesses, and organizations through trusted relationships and collaboration.

Why It Matters to My Clients

Building relationships within the veteran business community allows Raymond to remain connected with organizations and professionals who value service, integrity, and excellence. Those relationships strengthen his professional network and reinforce the personalized, client focused approach that defines Regal Luxury Travel with Raymond.
