NEW CLIENT INFORMATION PACKET

CONGRATULATIONS on making your first step to a fitter healthier you. My purpose as your personal fitness trainer is simply to help you “improve your quality of life.” Living in such a busy world does not always afford everyone the opportunity to get in that much needed workout. However, you have decided to make the time by hiring me to help you meet your health and fitness goals.

According to the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM), you should participate in at least two resistance training sessions per week, and three to five days of cardiovascular training. Eventually, you’ll progress to doing some type of activity most days of the week, some of which may be done on your own. I’ll help you plan and schedule these workouts so that it’s easy for you to complete them. After four to six weeks of training, if not sooner, you should start seeing some great results.

To make sure that you don’t encounter a fitness plateau, I will periodically reevaluate your exercise program. Constant supervision and adjustment are essential features of responsible fitness training.

After completely filling out the new client information packet, please either print it out and have it ready for our appointment or email the forms back to me. During our first appointment we will review these forms, and possibly do some assessments. This is going to be our starting point, so that we have some baseline information to begin an appropriate level of training for you.

In closing, remember, I am here for you. If you have any questions, feel free to give me a call and I will answer them as best I can. Again, thank you very much for your decision to invest in me and I look forward to working with you.

Promptness.

To get the most out of your time and efforts, please be ready to exercise at the appointed time. Because clients are usually scheduled before and after you, your trainer may also have a meeting or personal development time immediately after your session. Workout times may not always be able to be extended if you are late.

Cancelled/Rescheduling of Appointments

Training sessions that are cancelled with less than 24 hours notice will be charged toward the client if they cannot be rescheduled within the week. I will do my best to accommodate your request. Most of my clients are booked well in advance and often consecutively. We will work together to make sure that you complete the required number of training sessions per week. My commitment and service to you will not be taken lightly.
