GOOGLE TO INVEST $1 BILLION IN THAILAND

Google plans to invest $1 billion to build digital infrastructure in Thailand, including a new data centre, the US tech giant has announced, saying the move would support 14,000 jobs in the kingdom.
The move aims to meet growing demand for cloud computing in Southeast Asia. Google's investment comes after Microsoft announced in May that it would create Thailand's first data centre region to boost cloud and artificial intelligence infrastructure.
