Donna's need for a kidney

Donna Koehler has known since she was she was 24 years old that she carried the inherited gene for Polycystic kidney disease (PKD). She has always tried to protect and preserve her kidneys, however forming cysts have caused damage and reduced its function to the point that she is in need of a transplant. The deceased donor wait list is long and could take many years before one becomes available. A live kidney donor is the healthiest option, offering a closer match, better results and longevity. A donor does not even have to be a match as a paired program enables exchanging for one that is. A healthy person can live a normal, long life with only one kidney. If you are so moved to offer Donna this life giving gift, please complete the form at https://uwhealthtransplant.donorscreen.org/register/now to start the evaluation process. Testing and medical expenses are paid for by the recipients insurance. There is also a program that offers reimbursement for lost wages. If you have questions you can call UW hospital at 608-263-1384 or talk to Donna.
