We have officially opened up the Boone County Seed Library. Don't miss out on this awesome/free opportunity at our local library. All you need is a Library Card to check them out.

What is a seed lending library? In simple terms, a seed library is just how it sounds- it loans seeds to gardeners. Exactly how does a seed lending library work? A seed library works much like a traditional library- but not quite.

The benefits of a seed lending library are many: it is a way to have fun, build community with fellow gardeners, and support people who are new to the world of gardening. It also preserves rare, open-pollinated or heirloom seeds and encourages gardeners to save quality seeds that are suitable for your local growing area.

A seed library takes some time and effort to put together, but the way the library works is very simple: gardeners "borrow" seeds from the library at planting time. At the end of the growing season, they save seeds from the plants and return a portion of the seeds to the library.
