STEVEN SIMMONS

Stylist

Steven was born in Chicago, Illinois, where his passion for design began at a young age. When his cousins brought home comic books, car magazines, and the occasional Playboy, he found himself buried in GQ Magazine. His love deepened when he started receiving GQ Magazine—his first subscription—and found inspiration in other publications like the International Male catalog. (If you know, you know.) From those early influences, he developed a lasting appreciation for style, creativity, and visual storytelling, believing that fashion is a public relations agent—an introduction to the room without saying a word, with the power to control the final punctuation.

HENRY WARD

Henry Ward (or Aiden) has been modeling for over 15 years, building a presence that extends beyond the runway, from Jackson, Mississippi to major platforms like New York and Los Angeles Fashion Week.

He's collaborated with talents like Kmarsh II and Angel Lee Modeling Company, and in 2024 signed with LCD Modeling Talent Agency, continuing to grow and evolve.

Beyond modeling, he founded H Productionz to train talent, produce events, and design fashion—using it all to tell stories and help shape the industry.

PENNY NICKELS

Designer

Penny (otherwise known as Michael) began sewing in high school as a way to express themselves and created cosplay and DisneyBounding looks while living in Orlando. She honed her skills designing for performers and Mardi Gras krewes in Louisiana and Mississippi. She continues to bring her love of vintage fashion and the showgirl aesthetic with a modern twist to all of her designs. Whether it's reconstructing a beaded gown from the 80's, creating leather accessories from scraps, or upcycling thrift store jeans into handbags; Penny utilizes her love of "the hunt" to bring new life to discarded fashion.
