Lots of snow outside

It's December 12, 2019 and it has been snowing with a fair amount of snow on the ground, bringing to life the Christmas feelings again with the holidays quickly approaching. I feel my emotions rising as the Christmas carols play bringing back memories of when I was a boy in Guyana where most people regardless of their religion celebrated Christmas. Like many celebrations in Guyana, and for many in Guyana, Christmas is a cultural celebration where people greeted each other and exchange gifts. When I arrived in Canada as a boy, I was very surprised to see that Christmas was not as grand as it was in Guyana, a place where I sang all the hymns in school. As an adult in Canada, I even wrote a song called Christmas reminiscing on my Christmas holidays; this song have three versions where the second version is a holiday version called Precious Holidays. Back in those days many people put up a tree, decorate the trees with colorful lights and ornaments, and children put up their stockings believing that Santa will come through the chimney when they are asleep. And for the ones that could not afford a tree, they still celebrated by even putting up a branch and decorating it.

In Canada, we continued our Christmas celebrations and also with Alberta Friends of Guyana Association. Even though many like myself are not Christians, we had Christmas parties for the children, where some of us took turns dressing up as Santa over the years and handing out gifts. Although I'm not a Christian, my family, relatives and I still greet each other with 'Merry Christmas' and exchange presents as a part of a cultural celebration.

Put up a tree - Merry Christmas

During the holidays in 2018, I was very surprised when I turned on the radio one morning, which I rarely did, and a Christmas song, which I never heard before, yelled out 'Put up a tree' with the same tone and melody as my Christmas Rock version song which has been posted on YouTube for years now. I hope these same people are not afraid to stand up and say 'Merry Christmas' since people are being told to say 'Happy Holidays' instead.

Baking during the holidays Peppercot, Jerk chicken

Baking during the Christmas holidays has always been special to my mom, grandmother and aunts in Guyana, which continued in Canada, England and in New York with our relatives. I have also written articles called the 'the sponge cake' articles on baking.

Celebrate with pepperpot

In Guyana many celebrate the holidays with a big meal such as cooking pepperpot, which is an American Indian dish, curry chicken, chowmein, provisions, and other dishes. And in Canada, we still cook up a storm and bake during the Christmas holidays.

Happy Holidays! What about Merry Christmas?

Today people are encouraged to say Happy Holidays instead of Merry Christmas, even though the holidays surround Christmas and Christmas shopping. And you are encouraged to spend your money throughout the month for Christmas presents? But you are encouraged only to say 'Happy Holidays.' Sounds hypocritical, doesn't it? I will continue to greet people with Merry Christmas.

For Muslims and others that have never had the opportunity before to be a part of a culture that celebrates Christmas, I am encouraging you to greet Christians by wishing them a Merry Christmas - after all the holidays do surround Christmas. Wishing people a Merry Christmas does not mean that you must put up a Christmas tree, decorate it with lights and decorate your home and do everything Christians do. It's about togetherness and respect for others and their celebrations, as long its not devil and cult worshipping. So enjoy the festivities and anybody is welcome to greet me with Merry Christmas and I will be very happy to greet you back with Merry Christmas.

The only celebration I do not take part in and which is now one of the biggest celebrations in the world and is celebrate by many people of many religious backgrounds including atheists is Halloween. Halloween can be fun, but when you read up about it, the devil is somehow connected to this celebration along with the occult. Even about a month after Halloween 2019 in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, as I drove down Yellowhead Trail heading west on November 21, 2019 around 9:30am, the digital billboard was displaying a hand with a devil's horn and with the words "Unique to you", and on November 25, 2019, heading West again around 9:30 am, the same billboard displayed a big U with a color close to dark red and on the right top of the U there was straight line to the right with what looked like a devil's head attached and with the words 'Unique to you' which in my opinion means that flashing the hand with the devil's horn on November 21 was really about the devil and not about someone at a rock concert flashing the devil's horns. I had done a blog on this. While driving on the Yellowhead Trail heading east and when I stop at the lights I would look over my shoulder and the sign will now show a U with a design that looks like the colors of the rainbow and the words 'Unique to you'. After writing my blog on this I never saw the devil horns or devil face flashing again on the billboard.

The New Year and the future that looks bleak for the upcoming generations, and 5 nail holes in my tire

From my view, the New Year and the future looks very bleak worldwide especially with all of the deceptions taking place. There seems to be worldwide divisions in race, religions and nations being planned and orchestrated. It's the holidays with celebrations, and in a past edition I had posted a picture of my tire with a nail hole stabbed into the sidewall circled in white chalk around Canada Day celebrations.

Just recently, someone took in the tire a few weeks ago to see if the one hole on the sidewall can be repaired, but now they found a total of five nail holes stabbed into the tire, and jokingly I was asked if I have an enemy. Enemy? It could be the person with his network who has been stalking me online. Since I need a pair of tires, it's no point in spending money to fix the other tire which is also flat and where I saw what looks like a small nail at the bottom.

Jerk chicken during the holidays

In Guyana, people often have pepperpot during the holidays, and in Jamaica many are probably enjoy some spicy tasty Jerk chicken. While sitting in a coffee shop on Friday, December 20, 2019, trying to complete this edition, once in a while I would glance at the TV to catch the sport highlights, and around 10:15am as I watched the hockey highlights, TSN Flashed the words "BUNCH OF JERKS." Whoa, I thought. I rarely watch TV or TSN, so for me it was odd to see the words 'Bunch of Jerks' flashed on the screen in the wide-open mall with no volume. The word 'Jerks' triggered of something in my head. Because this magazine can be big - sometimes almost 100 hundred pages - and can take up a lot of my time, sometimes I forget what I'm working on, and a reminder helps. I have been sitting in the same café and same spot for years now watching some of the TSN highlights and I have never seen them flashing 'Bunch of Jerks.' I did a quick search in the magazine for the word 'Jerk' and surely the words 'BBQ JERK CHICKEN PLATTER' came up. Over the past few days, I had been sitting in this same café watching the TSN highlights and working on the cuisine section with jerk chicken. I had to complete the section on dishes. My online stalker sent me a message calling me paranoid because I wrote about TSN. What can I say, but I enjoy writing about my encounters. Is my stalker is going to stop me from writing? He wants to know where are the similarities. Think about it! Why is my stalker combing through my blogs on a website that most people do not know exist. Why is my stacker assuming a Muslim name and pretending to be a Muslim when I know who this person is? Some just cannot hide their trails. He and his network cannot understand that they cannot attack me and bully me because they think they are better than everyone else. He cannot comprehend that I will not let anybody bully me because of their hatred for others. People are going to stand up for their rights!

Words do trigger thoughts. For example you are going shopping and a digital billboard flashes similar words that you were speaking at home, or writing in your email. You become triggered by certain words. That does not mean that you are paranoid and is looking for similarities. When I saw those words on TSN it triggered something in me. My online stalker sent me messages about me being paranoid. Obviously he is being triggered by what I'm writing. He's the one that's paranoid about something, so he is accusing me about being paranoid when I write certain things or talks about similarities. It's obviously bothering him. In this day and age, most people are aware that we are living in a time where digital billboards and our emails knows everything about us, what we are doing or were doing, what we are talking about, and will let us know with trigger words and ADS. Perhaps I will see Jerk chicken flashing on the digital billboard and you know what time it is. Jerk chicken time!

New Year 2020

Major changes are coming in 2020, changes like we've never seen before. I was watching a YouTube video on how many species are becoming extinct. And a day or two later an article came to my space saying that humans will also become extinct. Well that does not surprise me after I woke up and saw what's talking place and hidden in this world and with all of the deceptions taking place. What's written before such as 1984 Big Brother and other books have come true. Yes, Big Brother is watching our every move.

With technology and some playing god and where men males wants to be females and females wants to be males and babies are being designed, there have been talks on youtube videos about some sports athletes were created in labs, having all kinds of DNA mixed up. So what and what is running this world? With all the changes talking place and with designer babies and the family structure collapsing worldwide, these are the End Times for the human race as we know it.

So this is the Christmas holidays, lets get back to it. As the Truth Teller 'MAG' on YouTube always say 'LET'S GET INTO IT!' BACK TO THE HOLIDAYS!

Enjoy the holidays and the New Year because I see a very bleak 2020 looming, which I would not have said two years ago. Big changes are coming as Sweden having already micro chipped 4,000 people, and vaccination is mandatory for some, and we're no doubt heading for cashless societies, a one world government, and United Nations called in to help curb the crimes in Chicago and from what I've read is also in every state in America, big changes are coming. Surveillance is now everywhere, not just for me but for all politicians and people that are in high positions passing all kinds of laws that will destroy humanity. We're under a system with texting and cell phones that's spying on us, in our homes, backyards, while we are driving. Many in positions (bonus lovers) are to be thanked for participating in passing all kinds of laws to keep each one of us - including themselves- under surveillance with worldwide deceptions upon us. The future for humanity looks bleak. Perhaps, Babylon has always been ruling the world and all the worlds' Empires...Fisal Ally

Spiritual Healing by Usheda Akbar-Shanks

Shamanism is pure and simple spirit work used to heal people.

TRADITIONAL TECHNIQUES

Using traditional techniques to invoke the ancestral Spirits, the shaman / spirit healer acts as a ‘bridge between the spirit and the mundane world’. Once the ancestral spirits are called they do the healing work.

SOUL DOCTOR AND THREE TYPES OF RITUALS

A shaman is a soul doctor who facilitated healing on a soul level. There are three types of rituals, which are usually done in stages for each healing session. The first is soul resonance where the shaman scans the bodily energies of the client to get a basic blue print. Once this is done the client is debriefed and the second part called soul extraction is done. With the help of an extraction guide the unwanted residual is removed. The third part is soul retrieval where the missing parts of the soul are called back in with the help of guides. The length and intensity of each session varies from client to client. Some may require more than one session.

These techniques are used with clients who come to the shaman as a last resort. Some clients may have suffered from soul imbalance etc... all their lives and finally get some relief. Often childhood traumas cause irreparable “ damage” on a soul level. The shaman will receive visions and other pertinent information to relay to the client. This is done with a lot of compassion and empathy in a respectful and comfortable place.

RESULTS

Results are normally excellent and can be recognized almost immediately. Clients usually feel happy and relaxed right awa

ALLY

This section was updated on Jan 12, 2020.

THE 1990s (INDEPENDENT) INDY MUSIC SCENE

On January 5, 2020, two sets of recordings on cassette tapes from 1999 were converted to digital. As of January 5, 2020, these digital files are available. In those days I used the name Fyzal Deen, which is my first and middle name.

For me, this 1990s Indy Music Scene began in 1990 with the song, 'The Birds Won't Come My Way' and another original song, or it may have been in 1989. To mark time, I usually pick something that's familiar with me, whether it's a phrase, word, or some kind of similarities; that does not mean that I am paranoid as my stalker that sends messages to me through the website says. At the time, in 1989/1990, I was working in Fort McMurray when I wrote the song, 'The Birds Won't Come My Way.' After I had gone out to a junkyard with a friend who was looking for a car engine, and in the distance there were lots of birds, and everything seems polluted, I was inspired and wrote the song. When I hear about pollution it always triggers of the song 'The Birds Won't Come My Way', marking that time period.

This 1990s Indy scene continued throughout the entire 1990s while I was working mainly as a computer programmer and also went back to school. For example, I recall pulling into the back alley many times to and enter Beta Studio, and also walking up a set of long stairs when entering Big Records.

I never pursued playing in clubs. I had focused mainly on songwriting and recording, although I was involved in some live performances such as at the Legislative grounds, in B.C and other places, and did some traveling for a year with a band.

In the studios I had met many session musicians whom I learned a great deal from being in the professional studios. Although the 1999 project was not completed, it's all a part of my experience in the music scene, and I have tapes of my songs and my experiences.

UPDATING CASSETTES TO DIGITAL FOR EASY ACCESS AND DISTRIBUTION

On January 5, 2020 and shortly before, I had decided to convert many of the tracks recorded in 1999 that were on tapes to a digital format.

I call one set of recordings:

TRUE LOVE
FYZAL DEEN AT RED STRIPE IN 1999
THE 1990s Indy Music Scene

The first set of tracks were recorded at Alberta Sound Engineering in 1999 and mixed down at Red Stripe in British Columbia in 1999.

The second set of tracks were recorded at Power Sound Studios in 1999 and I called the project:

FYZAL DEEN AT POWER SOUND STUDIOS IN 1999
THE 1990s Indy Music Scene

Tracks were recorded in 1999 but the projects were not completed as originally planned

In 1999 my projects were not completed due to unforeseen setbacks. Many tracks were mixed down and used as band tracks for playing over the years. Most of the vocals were not produced as planned and thus the vocals and mix are rough. This was a part of what I refer to as the 1990s Indy Music Scene.

As a part of this 1990 scene, I wrote many songs and entered some professional recording studios. Prior to this, I had done some home recordings using 4-tracks and ADAT machines where three tapes were recorded in 1994 and 1995. Before entering a professional studio, I always had a few versions of my songs recorded using multiple instruments and a drum machine.

The converted tracks from tape to digital are not good quality, but they mark a period of time and familiarity for me.

Modifying lyrics

Being an Indy Artist, over time some of the lyrics on some of my songs were modified as seen in my song / lyric book, and some of my songs have different versions, for example 'Wide Eyed Innocent', and '2Can Play' (Party Till We Fell Alright). A change in lyrics in the song 'Sometimes' is in the second line where I later replaced the line 'I can't help the way I feel for you' for 'Sometimes I hear voices calling my name' which rhymes with the first line. Speaking of Wide Eyed Innocent, recently in my neighborhood I heard a similar bass line to my song Wide Eyed Innocent, but of course modified.

Below are songs on the digital conversion that took place on January 5, 2020, converting songs from tape to digital. Although the conversion began on Jan 5 2020, other format(s) took place within a few days after, along with some cleaning up. In the future the order of the songs may change and the recordings with more conversations will take place.

Music and lyrics by Fisal (Fizal) D. Ally (Aka: Brian Ally, Deen Ally, Fyzal Deen)

I played guitar on this project. For example I played the guitar parts on Party till we feel alright.

A 4 song Christmas CD was created in 1999 during this time.

The digital format from the tapes was created on January 5, 2020, and modifications after with updated versions.

The tape and the digital version of Party Till We Feel Alright has a sitar intro, and later on in the song the sitar comes back in. One of the first versions of this song was done in Beta Studios where a tabla was used during the riff.

Sessions musicians

Sessions musicians that played in 1999 at Powersound Studios are:

Phil Anderson (bass), Carmine Caligiuri (drums), John Cooke (keyboards), Mark Puffer (lead guitarist), Matt Robertson (lead guitarist)

On the 4 song Christmas CD in 1999, the other session players were:

Roxana Avalos-Calderon (violin), St. John Bosco Church Choir sang on Keep the peace, and on Christmas.

During this time, I had some vocals coaching from an amazing singer named Anna Beaumont, so it was unfortunate that I could not have completed the project due to unforeseen setbacks. However, the tracks on tapes and the 4 songs CD marks that period in time for me even if the mixes are rough and a bit noisy.

Around the mid 1990s, one of my brother's friends, Russel Althouse, from his work place had brought over his guitar and we were playing 'The Birds Won't Come My Way.' I had asked Russel to come up with a lead for this song and he played a picking pattern for the lead, which I liked. Although I did not use the picking pattern as the lead for this song, I began using the pattern which Russel had played but with my own modifications and triads throughout the entire song.

SONGS ON PROJECT 2

TRUE LOVE FYZAL DEEN AT RED STRIPE IN 1999

The 1990s Indy music scene

I played bass and guitar on all the tracks. Drums were created by Cam Guse. I would have to say that the drums Cam came up with for the song 'True Love' is one of my favorite for this song because the drums are fast and moving and brings a fast version to this song. This song was recorded many times in the 1990s.

Red Stripe

For this project, I mentioned Red Stripe on the CD because it was a memorable experience flying to British Columbia to enter this studio and download the tracks that was recorded in Edmonton, AB, Canada. Although I do not remember, I believe that I had done some quick vocals at Red Stripe. I did not have an opportunity to complete the vocal production in Edmonton.

The song 2CanPlay / Party till we feel alright

The song 'Party till we feel alright' or 'We party till we feel alright' or simply the Party till song (there was no need to say party until...simply party till works), was originally called 2 Can Play. The original version, 2CanPlay is still used. Around 1997 while recording this same song at Beta studio, the producer, Gary Koliger, had mentioned that the song could be called 'Dance all night.' This song has many names. It's a song about people that party their life away - certainly not about me as I'm not a party kind of person, as I had to spend lots of time as home writing songs, recording and writing books. For this song I have been playing the different guitar parts, which is three or four parts (rhythm, riff, a lead riff, lead guitar). I had surprised myself being able to come up with all of those parts playing on top of each other. It's alot of work creating riffs and leads, and I could not have done this if I was into drugs, alcohol, hanging out at bars and watching hours of sports on TV. The version on this party till song which drummer, Tim Lent, had played on around 1998 in Big Records is one of my favorites for this song. There are about 6 versions of this song recorded in the 1990s as part of my 1990s Indy Music Scene.
