3. Enhance your knowledge and skills to make informed decisions when selecting funeral services, becoming a well-informed consumer.

Assignment 1

Whenever we are considering an important purchase, we know that it's wise to do our research. You've likely heard the advice not to go to the grocery store when you're hungry and haven't made a list. You'll over shop based on your physical state and lack of preparation. That principle holds true across the board. It's important to understand that funeral service providers can differ greatly. As you complete your homework, you will begin to see the variability in cost, services offered, ability to accommodate cultural or religious considerations, reputation and transparency. Researching and comparing funeral providers empowers consumers like you, to make informed decisions, ensuring that you receive the services you need at a fair cost and from a provider that meets your preferences and values.
