Bio

Geoffrey Toussaint is an experimental indie-electronic artist from a suburb outside of Washington, D.C. Since releasing music for the first time in 2017, he has continued to be a sonic tinkerer. From EDM like future bass to DnB to phonk, trap, and hyperpop, Geoffrey has tried many genres to build the skill set required to find his own niche, which currently lives triangulated somewhere between hyperpop, cloud trap, and trip hop. Geoffrey's signature style pulls inspiration from the likes of the late SOPHIE, Porter Robinson, blackinterwells, and Ramzoid. He is an artist that specializes in deep, textured bass and nostalgia-inducing chords. His style has been described as cathartic, yet exhilarating.

Geoffrey Toussaint

Geoffrey Toussaint is composer and multi-instrumentalist independent electronic music producer from Washington, DC who made his debut in 2018 with the single "Young and Angry." That track introduced an eclectic and multi talented artist with a genre-bending sound and taste for chill beats. Since then the prolific producer has delivered a remarkable volume of work including over a dozen singles, 8 EPs and a full length album.

After that tremendous creative output of nearly incessant record releases, Geoffrey Toussaint took 6 months off to focus on defining his sound. To date, his new music has always been intentionally unclassifiable. After dropping his last EP 'stupid love songs' the multi-talented DMV artist decided to take a step back and assess.

"SUN & STARS" is the latest single from Geoffrey Toussaint, released worldwide to all major streaming services on May 20. The track is his first new music for 2022. Ambient synths and a Lo-fi abstract beat set a dreamy scene as an EDM bass rides that mellow beat. A female vocalist steps to the mic with a soft and soulful performance of this hypnotic and melancholy love song.
