

Beyond the Move: Creating Meaningful Transitions for Senior Living

Emotional Consideration for Senior Relocation and Well-being!

A Lifelong Calling Design & Care for Senior Living

My journey began with a passion for design, which evolved into a focus on healthcare. I discovered my true calling in senior living, where thoughtful design creates spaces of comfort and dignity.

The Emotional Journey of Transition

Moving is a profound life event, impacting emotional well-being, mental resilience, and personal identity. We understand it's more than logistics; it's about honoring one's story.

The Impact of Environment

The Critical Role of Indoor Spaces

90%

About 90% of our days spent indoors for many, often disconnecting from nature.

Critical

Need for thoughtful indoor design and connection to nature (Biophilic Design).

Especially for seniors that spend more times indoors.

Well-being

Directly impacted by environment and social connection.

Emotional Strength & Recovery

Studies consistently show a strong link between emotional resilience and faster physical and mental recovery. A supportive environment fosters this strength during transitions.

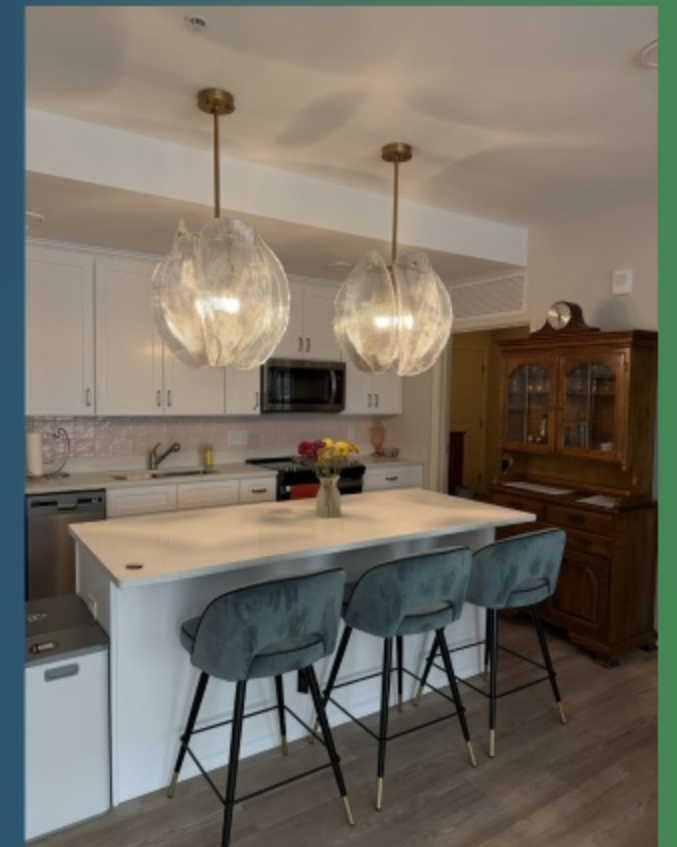

Every resident has a unique story, lifestyle, and set of needs.

Addressing the Current Gap

Many senior living transitions overlook the crucial emotional and design support needed.

This often creates a challenging, rather than comforting, experience for residents and families.

Collaboration & Educational Workshops

At Maya's Design Studio, we are honored to collaborate with leading professionals across the fields of construction, high-end real estate, and luxury development. Over the past few years, we've built strong partnerships with talented builders, exceptional vendors, and visionary teams who share our commitment to excellence, creativity, and client satisfaction.

This page is dedicated to celebrating those collaborations — showcasing the incredible projects, partnerships, and progress we've made together. From luxury residential and commercial developments to senior-living communities, our shared goal has always been to deliver refined, functional, and timeless design experiences.

We're now expanding our full professional interior design and remodeling services into the healthcare sector, offering beautiful, efficient, and wellness-focused spaces that serve both professionals and the community.

With two master's degrees — one in Interior Design and one in MBA Marketing — I've learned how design and business strategy go hand in hand. It's this combination that allows our team to grow, innovate, and consistently bring projects to life with passion, precision, and purpose.

Together with our partners, we're proud to continue building environments that inspire, support, and elevate the people who live and work in them.

I'm deeply passionate about educating others on the power of interior design, how it shapes our daily lives, and elevates every business environment. Combining my MBA in Marketing with my interior design background, I lead workshops that empower audiences to see design as a strategic business tool.

Our Broader Vision: Dignified Transitions

We envision a world where every senior move is supported with profound care, thoughtful design, & respect for individual identity, making transitions meaningful & empowering.

After deciding to move to a senior living facility, my husband and I chose to work with Maya's Design Studio to help with our new space. We were combining two spaces next to each other and that offered not only more space but challenges and unknowns. All the changes were met with optimism by Maya and her team. Decisions were made to go around, up, and over immovable objects - of which there were many - to reach a workable solution. Maya always offered a realistic and doable way forward. The end the result is very pleasing. A wonderful small nook for musing, lovely floor to ceiling bookcases for not only books but for many of my collections. And closets made workable! A few new pieces of furniture were needed and Maya offered excellent choices for consideration. We are very happy with our new living space and also with our relationship with Maya. She and her team have met all of our expectations. It is an extra bonus to know and become friends with Maya along the way.

Clara Heironimus

Maya helped us with combining two apartments at Grand Living at the Grove. She managed the whole process of permitting, design, and construction.

We couldn't be more pleased. Outstanding results and great communication throughout the entire process.

The result turned out even better than expected, and having someone who understood both interior design and the construction side made everything easier. We are very happy with the outcome!
