Postcard Corner: Gaillard Memorial

By Brad Wilde

Nothing is known about the publisher or printer of this card.

On the picture side printing is in bronze on a light cream-colored paper stock. It view side (Fig. 1) depicts the Gaillard Memorial which still stands where it was originally placed at the Continental Divide. The address side (Fig. 2) is printed in bronze in a very plain format. There is no number associated with this card.

Most ship canal projects involved deep excavation along the canal's entire route. Because American engineers chose to dam the Chagres River to create a 33-mile-long lake, they greatly reduced the amount of material requiring excavation. Instead,

New Panama Arms 50c Orange on cover found.

By Kurt Streepy

There have been four Panama Scott #242 on cover reported to date, three philatelic covers and one first flight. I recently located an additional Panama Scott #242 on cover while searching eBay for covers related to the 1924 Panama Arms issue (Figure 1). It was posted January 4, 1940 and backstamped Lisboa Central (Lisbon) January 15, 1940. No arrival markings for London. I was the successful bidder and added this example to my collection and future exhibit.

If anyone is aware of additional covers with 242 or any covers with 243, please contact me ksstreepy@gmail.com. As I work towards an exhibit, I would be interested in
