

Thank you for booking your amazing trip to Alaska with me! I'm thrilled to help you prepare for this incredible adventure. To ensure you have the best experience possible, I've put together this comprehensive packing list with some helpful tips:

Layering Up for an Alaskan Adventure:

- When it comes to packing for Alaska, the key is to embrace the art of layering. The weather in the Last Frontier can be unpredictable, with temperatures ranging from a chilly 30°F to a surprisingly warm 80°F, sometimes all on the same day.
- Packaging versatile layers allows you to easily adjust to the ever-changing conditions and ensure comfort throughout your journey. We recommend packing the following essential layers:
  - Base layers: Lightweight, breathable shirts and pants that can be worn as a foundation
  - Mid-layers: Warm, insulating pieces like fleece pullovers, sweaters, or light jackets
  - Outer layers: Weatherproof, breathable jackets and pants to protect against wind and rain
  - Accessories: Hats, gloves, and scarves to keep you cozy

Footwear Focus:

- My preferred footwear for Alaska is comfortable, sturdy, and weatherproof.

Dining:

- While the overall vibe in Alaska is casual, you may want to dress up a bit for evening dining. Pack smart-casual outfits, such as button-down shirts, slacks, and dresses or blouses. However, please note that shorts and tank tops are generally inappropriate for men in the evenings. While some may wear tuxedos and evening gowns, remember to dress your best for your comfort level of evening dining and entertainment.

Photo Ops:

- Alaska's stunning landscapes and wildlife will provide endless opportunities for unforgettable photos. Pack a camera, extra batteries, and memory cards. Don't forget backup chargers for your phones if those will be your primary way to capture those unforgettable moments, as you'll likely be snapping pictures and videos throughout your trip. I don't take a camera and leave those up to the pros, but you may want to consider having a camera.

Bug Buster:

- Insect repellent is an essential item that should not be overlooked. Alaska's mosquitoes can be relentless, especially during the summer months, so make sure to have reliable bug spray on hand to keep those pesky critters at bay.

We hope these tips help you pack for your fantastic trip to Alaska. If you have any other questions, please don't hesitate to let us know. We can't wait to help you create lasting memories in the Last Frontier!

Thanks,
