

SPORTS OF THE SUMMER WORLD UNIVERSITY GAMES

The 18 sports represented by the pictograms above are those projected to be in the 2027 Summer World University Games if held in North Carolina.

The Bid Process is a rigorous one, extending through 2020 and 2021, with the host site for the 2027 Summer World University Games announced in 2022.

Substantial funds – the Bid Campaign Goal is $400,000 – are needed to sustain this major effort and successfully bring home the 2027 Summer World University Games when the announcement is made in 2022.

WORLD UNIVERSITY GAMES

2027 WUG SPORTS FINALS LOCATIONS

The map above showing sport finals locations is based on current plans for the 2027 World University Games and is subject to change. A Games in the Triangle is projected to require over 50 different venues for competition and practice, and to involve all 10 colleges and universities across the region. Participants would be housed in Athlete Villages at NC State University and UNC Chapel Hill.

A local committee is currently working to bring the 2027 Summer World University Games to our state and the Triangle region.

If the World University Games were hosted in North Carolina, it would be the largest event of any kind ever held in the state!

The World University Games are one of the largest sports events on the planet, second only to the Olympic Games.

Over 7,000 athletes typically participate in the Summer Games, representing more than 150 countries.

The Games feature the world's best collegiate athletes, competing to bring home the gold.

The Summer World University Games are broadcast around the world, with more than 4,000 hours of coverage and over 300 million viewers.

Up to 1,500 members of the national and international media are onsite to cover the Games.

Studies from recent Games show they deliver significant, positive local economic impacts of over $150 million.
