J. H. SMITH,
Observer.

ALL SORTS.

Trib cures insect bites and stings.

Judge Massey is in San Francisco.

Five California couples were married in Reno Thursday.

Carson made cigars continue to grow in public favor.

Miss Vera Davis is visiting friends in Reno.

Attorney Lathrop of Dayton spent yesterday in this city.

Dr. Fitzpatrick departed for San Francisco last evening for a two weeks' visit.

The rain has done more good than harm as most of the grain in this section is stacked.

Don't forget to call for your coupon when you buy anything at J. M. Johnson's Drug Store.

Mr. Jos. Platt, wife and daughter, Miss Bessie, and Miss Iva Millard, will leave tomorrow evening for San Francisco where they will remain several weeks.

FOR SALE—House and lot, house partially furnished. Will be sold cheap for cash. Enquire of L. A. Hawthorne Ormsby House.

Word was received from Woodfords last evening that Wm. Merrill was very low. Dr. Haffaker left for his bedside later in the evening.

The Elko Independent is asking where Lieutenant-Governor Judge resides. His residence is Carson City, Nevada, where he now is.

The Reno Journal thinks the Carson wheelmen had better get their relay riders "in running order" instead of the club. Of course a little jolting after a relay race is always in order.

Word came down from Woodfords last evening that Will Dudley, well known in this city, had his hand terribly injured by a saw at the Diamond saw mills.

When the clouds cleared away yesterday the summits of the mountains west of town were white with snow. Slide mountain remained covered with the beautiful nearly all day.

The French Drama.

One of the gallery gods of the Opera House sends the APPEAL the following as exemplifying his ideas on the French drama as produced in Carson last Wednesday evening:

Mister editor: I was one of the mugs what took in the French play at the the-ater last Wednesday. The Opera House folks has handed the people of this town many a warm pancake in the last few years, but nothing quite so near being fresh off the stove as that. It was called "The Duke's Mash," or something of that kind, and when I got home I told me mudder that I had been down to Bryson's all the evening playin solo sixty. I was blushin so when I told her that she suspecioned I had been takin the French show.

The Duke he makes a bet in the play that he can capture anything in petticoats they can point out and turn the trick inside of twenty-four hours, and he backs his judgment of himself with his own seeds. I didn't like to hear of a man makin a bet like that, but we fellers on the back seats all agreed that if his moral character wasn't all right his nerve was good and he was a game sport any how.

The first girl that shows up was from the country, and when I saw her I supposed the music to feller would be "Her Golden Hair was hangin down her back," but the orchestra over-looked it.

About that time the Duke, who had been livin happily with his wife, the beautiful Markeese de Pry, had a fallin out and he had the gall however to ask her to help him collar the stakes and she agreed, but later on in the play stood in with the girl and give the old rascal the double cross in good shape. She shut him out of the house, but he had a private pass key in case he came home drunk, and he got in all the same and after makin love to his own wife, had the gall to get out next day and try and cash his pool tickets.

Then the girl's young man got on deck and wanted gore and lots of it, but the French Government thought that they couldn't spare a man with the enterprise of the duke and wanted the duel settled by international agreement, or some such thing that they knew would never come off, and then the duke found out he was sold and all pools were declared off for the heat. I thought for a time there was goin to be trouble but the stage managers adjusted things so that no body got hurt and the girl came out all right and her dad was about to get out of the cooler when the curtain came down. I made a bet with one of the boys who was with me that Markeese de Pry was the wife of the Duke and he won't settle. I bet they were married, cause he had a pass key to the house, but he said pass keys didn't count in Paris any more, and I don't know how to settle the bet. We agreed to leave it to your valuable judgement and if you decide in my favor you are in for half the bet.

I told me sister on the quiet that the play was too loud for her and would make her blush going home for two blocks. She said she hadn't blushed for so long she might forget how and she thought she'd go just to keep her cheek in. I saw her light out for the Opera House next evenin with a feller what lives next door, and it was rarin the worst I ever saw.

Yours,

A Boy on the Back Bench.

Meyer's New Saloon

Today Johnny Meyers will open his new saloon, and he deserves all success in the new building. The place is without exception the handsomest building in this city and is an ornament that will remain for years to come, as it is built of stone and in a substantial manner. Johnny Meyers is one of the few men who believe in the future of Carson and to such an extent that he puts his money into the town. He has built a reputation for himself by square dealings and good goods. Many men walk blocks to drink his liquors, as they know that it is always of A1 quality. John is a good man for the town and it is to be hoped he will prosper at the new stand. If first-over-takes you today, or any old day, call on Johnny and you will find good treatment, good liquors and good company.

Yours,

District Court

The following business was transacted in the District Court yesterday:

In the case of Ross vs. Lothrop, et al, the argument upon defendant's motion of motion for a change of venue was heard. The Court took the matter under advisement.

An order fixing fee of counsel in the estate of C. A. Marston, deceased, was made.

The petition of the Pacific States Building & Loan Co., of San Francisco for leave to file creditor's estate was allowed.

In the Blackburn estate a re-sale of certain real property was ordered upon the showing being made that a much larger sum could be realized.

Heard From

According to the San Francisco papers a discovery has been made that the press censor at Manila has willfully suppressed letters from the prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos in which bitter complaints are made of the cruel manner in which they have been treated. Albert Lowenshon, formerly a boatswain on the Zealandia, writes some letters telling the truth of the matter and the contents of which are at a variance with the purported "official" accounts.

Among those who have been captured by the Filipinos are Lieutenant Gilmore and seven men of the Yorktown, four soldiers and two civilians. A. D. Bruce and E. Honneyman of the Nevada Cavalry are among the captured. They were taken prisoners on January 30th of this year and ever since have been treated in a most barbarous manner. At the time the letters were written the prisoners were to be marched northward, to what point they of course did not know. Up to the time of Gilmore's arrival which was on the 11th of April, the men had been bound, beaten and starved and it was only on the advance of the United States troops that the treatment of the prisoners was bettered. Living on five cents a day and being nearly naked is not a life of luxury. Even though the Americans were handled so harshly the Spanish prisoners were treated worse and many were tortured in stocks and starved. Hundreds are dying of dysentery and disease. Had it not been for the kindness of the Senor Rowan Ray, who was the bearer of the letters received, the Nevada boys and their fellow prisoners would have been starved on their retreat from Malolos. As an ending of one of the letters the writer, being the mouth-piece for all, offers up the following petition: "For God's sake can nothing be done for us? We have been starved, abused and treated like animals."—Silver State.

Quieting the Children

There is nothing which carries so much fear and repulsion to a child as the dental chair. Superintendent Joseph of the Orphan Home, noticing how frightened the little girls became at the mere mention that the dentist was coming, finally decided to have the dental work for the little girls done by one of their own sex. He has engaged Mrs. Cool to do the dentistry for the girls and Dr. Fitzpatrick for the boys. The selection of a woman dentist has had a very quieting effect and the girls do not shrink from having their teeth attended to as formerly.

Large Claim Filed.

Attorney Samuel Platt, in behalf of the Pacific States Building & Loan company of San Francisco, presented a petition before the District Court yesterday asking leave to file a claim of $7,078 against the estate of John G. Fox, deceased. After argument of counsel the claim was ordered filed.

Life of Dewey.

Murat Helstad's Life of Dewey will be complete when issued, including his triumphant return and enthusiastic reception when coming home. Other books on that subject are like Richard III, "come into this world scarce half made up."
