

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Chapter 1: 9-102. Introduction.

Chapter 2: 102-312. Listening to, Describing, Analyzing, and Interpreting the Lyrics and Music of Ian Curtis and Joy Division//In depth consideration of “Disorder,” “Transmission,” and “Twenty Four Hours.”

Chapter 3: 312-443. Encounter and Dialogue: Ian Curtis and Joy Division Meets Karl Marx’s Economic and Philosophic Manuscripts of 1844, Emile Durkheim’s Suicide: a Study in Sociology, and Sigmund Freud’s Civilization and Its Discontents//In depth consideration of “Shadowplay,” “Isolation,” “Means to an End,” and “Love Will Tear Us Apart.”

Chapter 4: 443-623. Encounter and Dialogue: Ian Curtis and Joy Division Meets Max Weber’s Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism, Louis Althusser’s On the Reproduction of Capitalism: Ideology and Ideological State Apparatuses, and Michel Foucault’s Discipline and Punish//In depth consideration of “Insight,” “New Dawn Fades,” “Atrocity Exhibition,” and “The Eternal.”

Chapter 5: 623-846. Encounter and Dialogue: Ian Curtis and Joy Division Meets Aimé Césaire’s Discourse on Colonialism, Edward Said’s Representations of the Intellectual, and Trinh T. Minh-ha’s Woman, Native, Other: Writing, Postcoloniality, and Feminism//In depth consideration of “Day of the Lords,” “Colony,” “Heart and Soul,” and “Autosuggestion.”

Chapter 6: 846-1121. Encounter and Dialogue: Ian Curtis and Joy Division Meets Robert McRuer’s Crip Theory: Cultural Signs of Queerness and Disability and Crip Times: Disability, Globalization, and Resistance, Ann Cvetkovich’s Depression: A Public Feeling, and Avery Gordon’s Ghostly Matters: Haunting and the Sociological Imagination//In depth consideration of “She’s Lost Control,” “Dead Souls,” “Atmosphere,” and “Decades.”

Chapter Seven: 1121-1194. Conclusion//Reflection on the Journey Writing This Book Has Been Along with In depth consideration of issues of Insecurity, Loneliness, Fear, Fascism, Utopia, and Hope.