

5)A Practical Response to Suffering Psalm 13,
Lamentations 3, Isaiah 41:10, Galatians 6:2, Revelation 21:4
2 Peter 3:13

Suffering in the world is a painful reality, but it is not an unanswerable mystery. The stories of Job and Solomon invite us to hold two truths in tension: life is fragile and filled with unanswered questions, and God is sovereign, good, and present.

Job models honest lament and trust in the face of mystery; Solomon cautions us against placing ultimate hope in wisdom, wealth, or human effort alone. Together, they point us toward a life of humility before God, dependence on his grace, and a steadfast hope in the coming restoration through Jesus Christ.
