LETTER FROM THE DIRECTOR

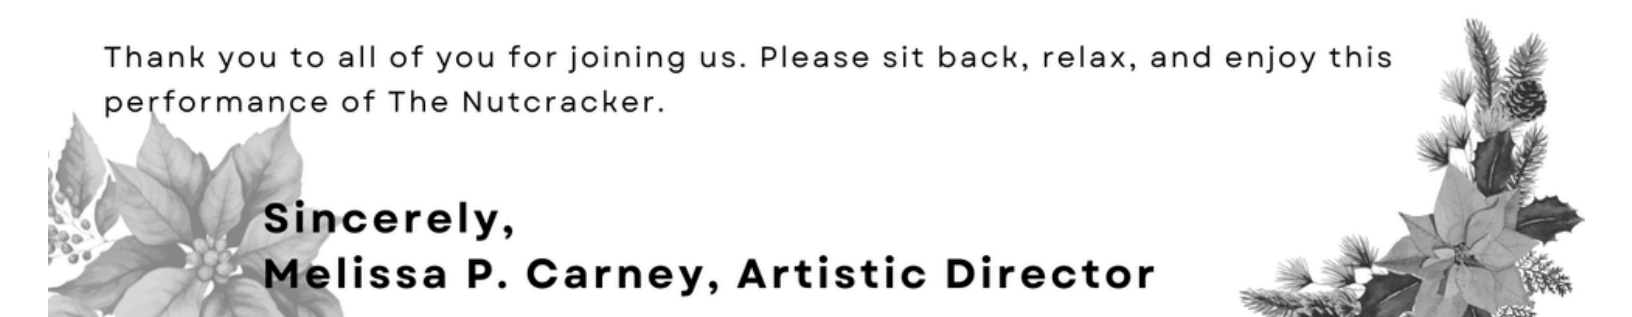

Welcome! The enchanting tale of “The Nutcracker and the Mouse King” by German author ETA Hoffmann and reimagined story “The Nutcracker” by French author Alexandre Dumas has instilled magic and wonder into the hearts and minds of people of all ages around the world.

The Nutcracker is a holiday tradition that my family honored when I was a little girl and continues to be a tradition within my family today. I was privileged to have been a student of the late William F. Christensen, affectionately known to his students as Mr. C. His production of The Nutcracker, performed by San Francisco Ballet in 1944, was the first in the United States. He unknowingly triggered something magical with his delightful rendition of the ballet. Audiences were so enchanted they requested the ballet to be performed year after year. This was the beginning of an annual holiday tradition that eventually spread worldwide and is a tradition that Ovations Studios has embraced wholeheartedly.

I wish to express an enormous thank you to all the incredible people who have worked so hard to continue this great tradition. To my Artistic Team, (Jessie Awad, Kristen Bollinger, Matthew Palfenier, Amanda Smith & Lori Williams) you are all an inspiration! Thank you for the time and creativity you have instilled into this production. To the team here at the Greenberg Theatre, (Greg Anderson, Lisa Barr & John Starr) you are amazing! Thank you for the artistry, advice, and assistance you provide even when we are working venues apart. To Sarah Gorman thank you for keeping the studio running smoothly and your stunning visual arts skills. You are my rock! To Chris Allen, thank you for illuminating our dancers in such beautiful lights.

Finally, to you our audience, may these amazing young dancers with their hearts on their sleeves and their passion for dance take you on a magical journey. I hope your experience today inspires you, piques your imagination, entertains your soul, and fills your heart.

Thank you to all of you for joining us. Please sit back, relax, and enjoy this performance of The Nutcracker.

Sincerely,
Melissa P. Carney, Artistic Director

THE PARTY

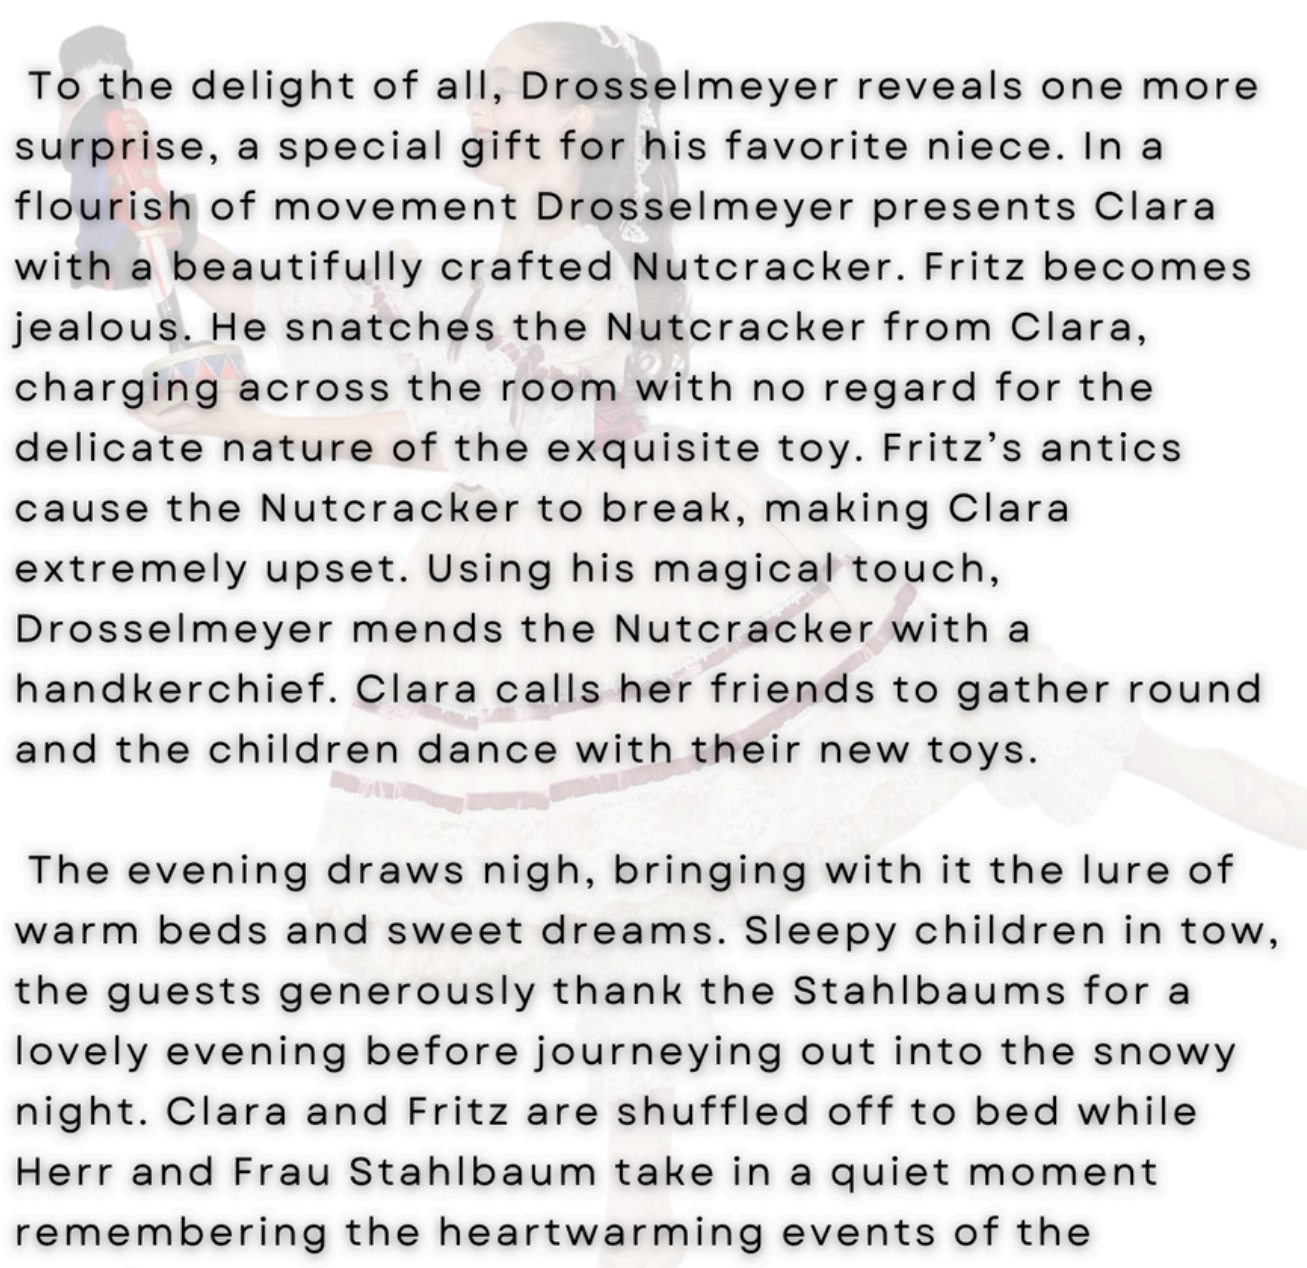

It is a cozy Christmas Eve at the Stahlbaum family home. The house is decorated with all the beauty of Christmas and in the center of it all, a majestic Christmas tree. As the Stahlbaums prepare for their annual Christmas party, their children, Fritz and Clara, wait in anticipation for family and friends to arrive.

Excitement fills the air whilst guests slowly make their way toward the Stahlbaum home. With their arrival, the party comes to life through dancing and celebration. Children carry on with laughter while their parents relax and enjoy the delightful evening. Suddenly, a mysterious guest arrives dressed in fanciful clothing. Clara and Fritz jump with joy and run to greet their uncle Drosselmeyer, the toymaker, and his assistant. Drosselmeyer's surprise arrival is warmly accepted. After a glad greeting, Drosselmeyer mesmerizes the children with magic tricks. As a treat for all present, the magician and his assistant bring to life two enchanted dolls that dance for the guests.

THE NUTCRACKER

To the delight of all, Drosselmeyer reveals one more surprise, a special gift for his favorite niece. In a flourish of movement Drosselmeyer presents Clara with a beautifully crafted Nutcracker. Fritz becomes jealous. He snatches the Nutcracker from Clara, charging across the room with no regard for the delicate nature of the exquisite toy. Fritz's antics cause the Nutcracker to break, making Clara extremely upset. Using his magical touch, Drosselmeyer mends the Nutcracker with a handkerchief. Clara calls her friends to gather round and the children dance with their new toys.

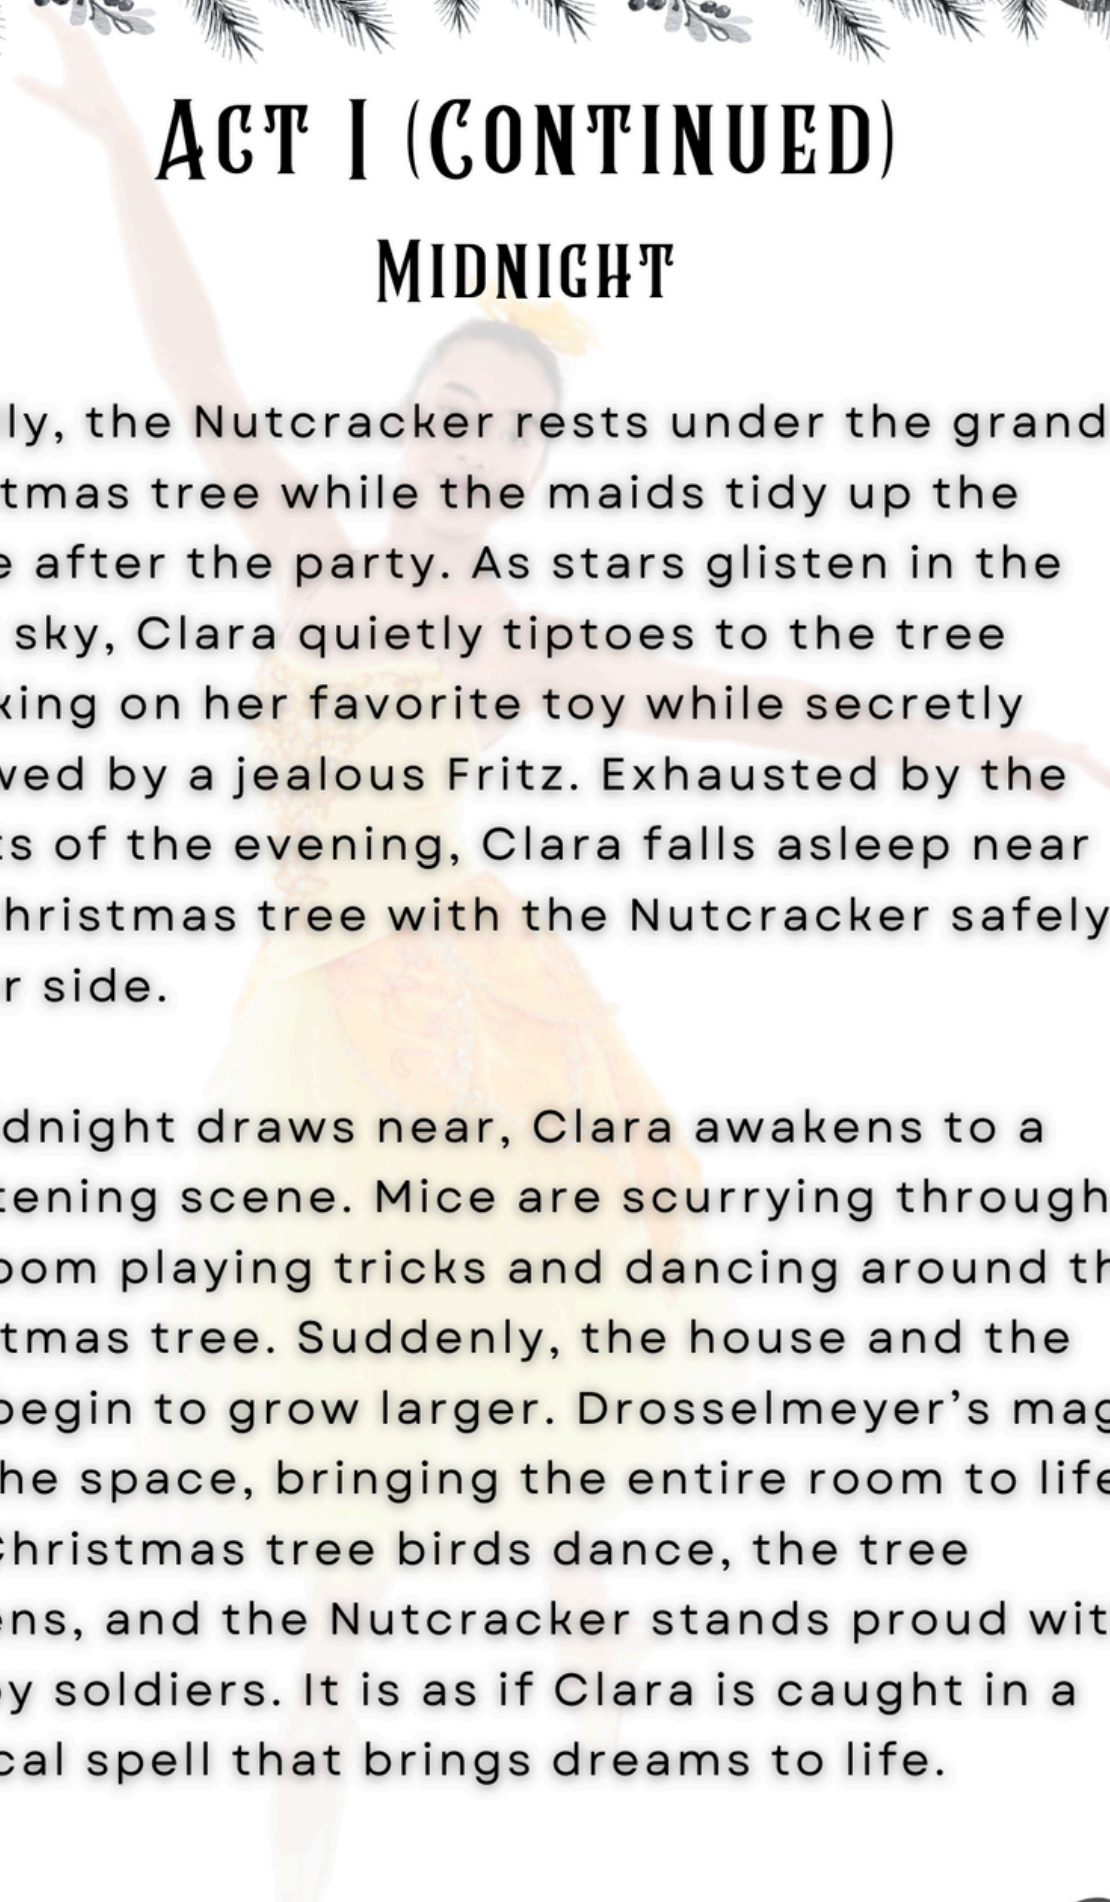

The evening draws nigh, bringing with it the lure of warm beds and sweet dreams. Sleepy children in tow, the guests generously thank the Stahlbaums for a lovely evening before journeying out into the snowy night. Clara and Fritz are shuffled off to bed while Herr and Frau Stahlbaum take in a quiet moment remembering the heartwarming events of the evening.

MIDNIGHT

Regally, the Nutcracker rests under the grand Christmas tree while the maids tidy up the house after the party. As stars glisten in the night sky, Clara quietly tiptoes to the tree checking on her favorite toy while secretly followed by a jealous Fritz. Exhausted by the events of the evening, Clara falls asleep near the Christmas tree with the Nutcracker safely by her side.

As midnight draws near, Clara awakens to a frightening scene. Mice are scurrying through the room playing tricks and dancing around the Christmas tree. Suddenly, the house and the tree begin to grow larger. Drosselmeyer's magic fills the space, bringing the entire room to life. The Christmas tree birds dance, the tree glistens, and the Nutcracker stands proud with his toy soldiers. It is as if Clara is caught in a magical spell that brings dreams to life.

THE BATTLE

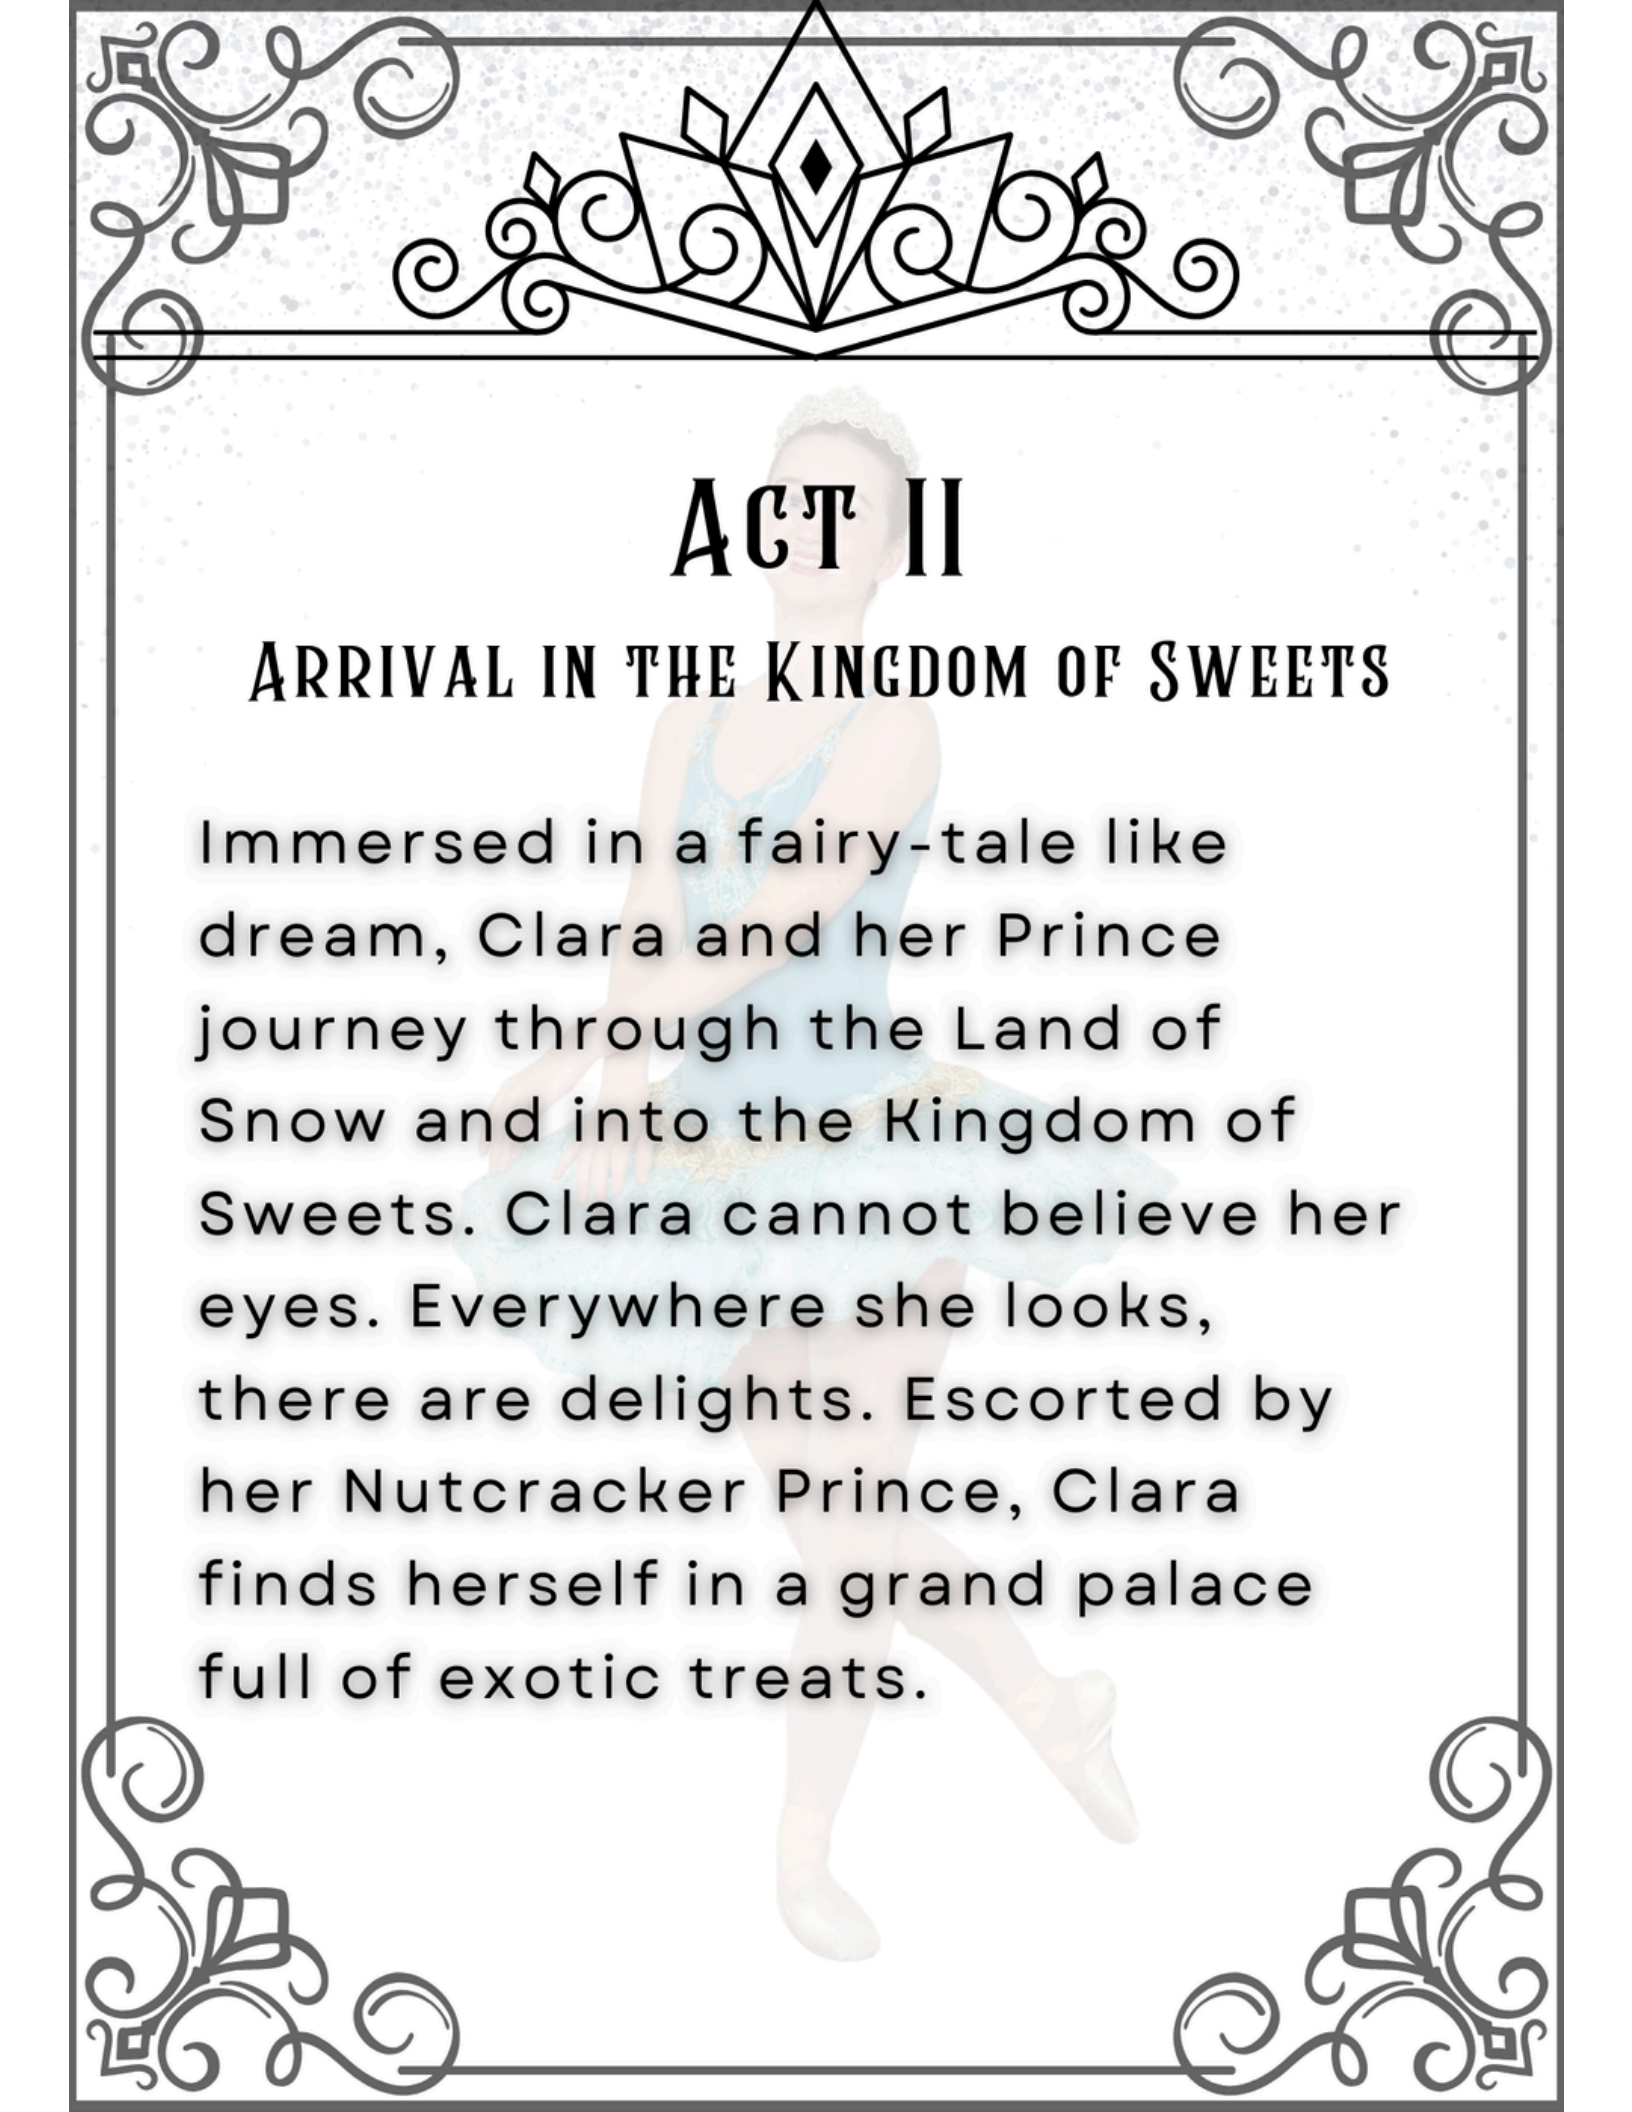

Out of nowhere, the mice reappear, led by the Great Mouse King. Clara's Nutcracker, who has magically grown to be life size, leads the toy soldiers into battle and fights the mouse army. The Mouse King traps the Nutcracker in a corner of the room overwhelming the Nutcracker with his strength and clever wit. Clara makes a desperate move to save her Nutcracker from defeat by striking the Mouse King with a slipper. This action only adds to the frustration of the Mouse King, who turns to attack Clara. With the Mouse King distracted, the Nutcracker seizes the opportunity lunging towards the Mouse King, striking him with his sword. The dying Mouse King falls to the living room floor, and the mouse army sadly carries away their defeated King. Clara runs to the opposite side of the room, overwhelmed by the events of the evening. In a miraculous moment, the Nutcracker is transformed into a human prince. Drosselmeyer presents the prince to Clara sending them on a magical journey.

JOURNEY THROUGH THE LAND OF SNOW

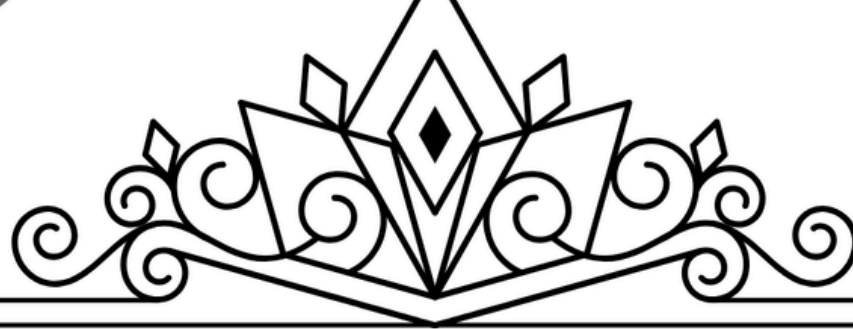

The journey begins in the Winter Forest as the Nutcracker escorts Clara through a beautiful forest freshly doused with snow. The Snow King and Queen greet Clara and her Nutcracker Prince. The royal couple call their dancing Snow Flurries, Snow Crystals, Snow Drops and glistening Snowflakes to meet the delighted Clara. As a gift, the Snow Queen invites Clara to take a journey in her magical sleigh, pulled by reindeer to the Kingdom of the Sweets.

ACT II

ARRIVAL IN THE KINGDOM OF SWEETS

Immersed in a fairy-tale like dream, Clara and her Prince journey through the Land of Snow and into the Kingdom of Sweets. Clara cannot believe her eyes. Everywhere she looks, there are delights. Escorted by her Nutcracker Prince, Clara finds herself in a grand palace full of exotic treats.

THE SUGAR PLUM PALACE

Upon their arrival, Clara and the Nutcracker are greeted by the Sugar Plum Fairy and her attendants. She invites the Nutcracker and Clara to share the tale of the evening's events. The Sugar Plum Fairy and her guests are impressed with Clara's bravery and the Nutcracker's heroism. In their honor, the Sugar Plum Fairy hosts a lavish festival for the heroic pair. Clara and her Nutcracker Prince are treated like royalty and honored with a presentation of dances from all over the world.

The first is that of the Spanish Chocolate Dancers who perform to the lively music of trumpets and castanets in a Spanish fandango. Next, the Arabian Princess and her Enchanter move like rising steam to the entrancing Arabian song of Arabian Coffee Dancers. Third, Chinese Tea Dancers move to an ethereal Asian flute chorus, jumping and twirling like acrobats. With a burst of energy, a Russian Trepak pair, one of whom looks much like Clara's Uncle Drosselmeyer, burst forward leaping and dancing to invigorating music. The atmosphere lightens, and beautiful Italian Marzipan Dancers join in the festivities filling the castle with fanciful dances.

THE KINGDOM OF SWEETS

To Clara's delight, there is still more to be seen. The boisterous Mademoiselle Gigogne, dances into the Sugar Plum Fairy's court. In a grand gesture, little French Polichinelle's tumble out dancing and circling around them. At Mademoiselle Gigogne's call, the Polichinelle's exuberantly file back behind the noble lady's dress as she blows kisses in a grand exit from the court.

Soon after, beautiful dancing Petals, Leaves and a Rose float into the room to the melody of a gentle harp. For Clara, this is the most beautiful waltz she has ever seen. At the invitation of the floral array, the Nutcracker Prince and Clara dance with joy as the flowers move in beautiful, mesmerizing patterns.

THE DANCE OF THE SUGAR PLUM FAIRY

Clara is excited to see what delight may enter next. As the flowers float to the ballroom floor, the British Sugar Plum Fairy and her Cavalier glide to the center of the court. They begin a dance that is lighter than air and one that completes Clara's perfect evening. The festival concludes with everyone in a grand finale. The Sugar Plum Fairy and her court bid Clara and the Nutcracker Prince farewell as they climb into the shimmering sleigh and sail through the night back to the Stahlbaum home.

As the sun rises on Christmas morning, Fritz races to the Christmas tree to discover his present, a gleaming sword. Overjoyed, he runs to Clara, who is asleep on the couch, waking her from her dream. Clara and Fritz gather in the center of the living room while Clara, holding the Nutcracker doll, recounts her marvelous dream.
