Data and Privacy

We will never sell your data. In fact, we strive to not handle any data whatsoever - payment, shopping patterns, viewing history, or any other data - beyond that which is necessary to complete each business transaction. Any information that you provide is likely provided directly to a website host's standard online payment processor, though their own embedded services on our site, which are all placed, managed, and handled in accordance with online store packages or plans offered by the host service provider. We have no payment processing or computer/server equipment, and all store pages and media are stored on, and hosted by, and through, the service providers using their own equipment. Therefore, we can assume no responsibility nor liability for any data or privacy breaches, or online issues, all of which are far away and beyond our control.

Products

Each product is hand-made and minor variations in materials and construction are expected. Also, the number of product images allowed by online stores is generally limited and, thus, product images are applied to product 'lines', and not to each individual unit. Therefore, although we strive to faithfully represent and reproduce each unit, actual colors and styles of each individual unit will likely vary from images of product lines. Furthermore, images may be entirely computer generated, as each graphic design is 3D modeled for appearances using the very digital sources used to produce the actual materials, and thus can be consistently represented in position, environment, and lighting, digitally.

Guarantee and Returns

We are a brand-new start-up in the online world and are vigorously working daily to improve all products and services. Currently, we guarantee our products for 30 days, and return shipping during that period must be customer-paid. We appreciate your patience as we grow.
