

About Töte

Töte was born on the battlefield, conceived by U.S. Special Forces, Airborne, Ranger, Captain Dennis 'Skip' Bailey* as an outlet for pent-up energies and as a development tool for a wide range of skills. It was later fully domesticated and entered civilian service where it has been enjoyed internationally by many players, 7 to 70 years old and beyond.

In All Places

Töte has been played for over 50 years on battlefields, in police academies, in fire departments, in fitness centers, in martial arts facilities, on company campuses, in universities, in K-12 schools, in parks, in playgrounds, and most importantly, in back yards across the world. While that is pretty much everywhere, we're always hopeful to one day find it being played in space, on the moon, and beyond.

Of All Heathy Reasons

While playing Töte is a completely unique experience in and of itself, it offers development of a long list of some uniquely serious skills and healthy benefits, including:

- Adaptation
- Advanced hand-eye coordination
- Ambidextrous muscle use
- Balance
- Courage
- Comprehensive muscle development
- Depth perception
- Honor
- Kinematics
- Momentum and dynamic motion
- Physical exercise
- Precision
- Rhythm
- Self-confidence
- Social skills
- Speed
- Sportsmanship
- Stamina
- Strength
- Strategy

... and many more.

For All People

Töte is also very unique in that it is gender-neutral - some of the best players in the world are, in fact, women. It is also age-neutral - some of the best players are children and many of the very best are seniors! If that wasn't enough, you might just be put to shame by a physically disabled player, because, 'yes', Töte can include them as well, and you may just discover they actually have advantages from advanced physical development in their compensating limbs - you might have trouble standing on one leg, but they have had to master it and do so every day!

With All Others

You don't need a large field of grass or polished wood courts, you don't need a truck bed or trunk-full of expensive equipment, you don't need to assemble anything or set anything up. You can carry all you need with you wherever you may go, but you do need one very important thing, you do need another... you do need honorable opponents. Social skills and interactions are an irreplaceable, yet vanishing part of our modern lives. Hopefully, we will all find each other again, not on backlit screens, but rather live and in person. Let's all...
