This is an especially dangerous abuse of power by this President. He places his self interest above the national security interests of the country.

David Kris  @DavidKris

The release of FISAs like this is off the charts. It is especially unprecedented considering that the FISAs have already gone through declassification review and the President is overruling the judgments of his subordinates to require expanded disclosure. 1/3

Mueller Firing Rapid Response - The Plan

RED LINES

Here are the actions Donald Trump could take that would set these protests in motion:

THE RED LINES – in graphic form here.

1. Firing Mueller
2. Pardons of key witnesses
3. Actions that would prevent the investigation from being conducted freely, such as replacing Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, Mueller's current supervisor, or repealing the regulations establishing the office
  - * The firing of Attorney General Jeff Sessions would be one step short of the break glass moment. We would not trigger events, but we would respond by growing the rapid-response list and demanding that any new AG protect the investigation and that Congress pass the Mueller protection legislation. *

TRUMP-RUSSIA RED LINES

WE WILL PROTEST IF DONALD TRUMP...

1. FIRES SPECIAL COUNSEL ROBERT MUELLER
2. PARDONS KEY WITNESSES
3. PREVENTS THE INVESTIGATION FROM BEING CONDUCTED FREELY, EG:
  - FIRING DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL ROD ROSENSTEIN
  - REPEALING THE REGULATIONS ESTABLISHING THE OFFICE

Goodbye, Mr. Rosenstein

The FBI's real objection was that it contained "material omissions" that made the bureau look bad. That is not a legitimate reason for originating or maintaining classification status, as noted by Washington Post columnist and Fox News contributor Marc A. Thiessen in a recent column. In fact, it is a direct violation of Executive Order 13526 that was signed by President Obama in 2009. Hiding lawlessness or embarrassment by government officials under the contrived protection of a "classified" designation is against the law.
