New Q (25 Mar): [They] get their talking points at 4am fm Dem-controlled corporations in charge of 90% of the Enemedia. Today was a combo of whining re: Barr being "handpicked" by POTUS & is covering for him. The other common theme was 'Trump is going to seek vengeance'. 🙄

Schumer's Warning
 Senate Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer quickly warned Trump against seizing on the report as a reason to dismiss Rosenstein.
 "This story must not be used as a pretext for the corrupt purpose of firing Deputy Attorney General Rosenstein in order install an official who will allow the president to interfere with the Special Counsel's investigation," Schumer said in a statement. He added that many "White House and cabinet officials have been reported to say critical things of the president without being fired."

POTUS: "This can never be allowed to happen again (in our Country or to another President)."
 How do you deter & prevent this from happening again?
 Simply by terminating employment of those responsible?
 Simply by conducting a few 'non-threatening' investigations?
 Or by:
 Prosecuting those responsible to the fullest extent of the law?
 Setting up new checks & balances and oversight designed to increase transparency?
 Provide OIG office(s) w/ funding inc (size) ++ authority?
 Provide select committees w/ access and in-house viewing of non NAT SEC CLAS material?
 Provide a check on Directors/Dep Directors/Asst Directors of all such ABC agencies?
 Establish 'financial checks/reviews' of those in senior (critical) positions (audits) + direct family (close proximity)?
 Transparency and Prosecution is the only way forward to save our Republic and safeguard such criminal and treasonous acts from occurring again.
 While some want to quietly remove tho responsible and go about our business (save face on the World Stage), those in control, understand, this band-aid will simply not work.
 Nobody should be above the law (no matter how massive the spider-web is (entangled)).
 This will never happen again.

Alleged Dark Web Child Pornography Facilitator Extradited to the United States to Face Federal Charges

Allegedly Made Available Over One Million Images of Child Pornography

Irish authorities extradited a dual national citizen of the United States and Ireland to the United States to face federal charges that he allegedly advertised and distributed child pornography on the dark web.

The extradition and federal charges were announced by Assistant Attorney General Brian A. Benczkowski of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Robert K. Hur for the District of Maryland and Assistant Director Robert Johnson of the FBI's Criminal Investigative Division.

Eric Eoin Marques, 33, arrived in the United States on March 23, and had his initial appearance today before U.S. Magistrate Judge Timothy J. Sullivan in U.S. District Court in Greenbelt, Maryland. An amended criminal complaint was filed on Aug. 8, 2013, and unsealed today at Marques' initial appearance. Marques is charged with conspiracy to advertise child pornography, conspiracy to distribute child pornography, aiding and abetting the advertising of child pornography, and aiding and abetting the distribution of child pornography. At the hearing, U.S. Magistrate Judge Sullivan ordered that Marques be detained pending trial or a detention hearing scheduled for March 27, 2019 at 11:30 a.m.

"Child exploitation sites on the dark web present a grave danger to children and unprecedented challenges to the world's law enforcement agencies," said Assistant Attorney General Benczkowski. "The complaint unsealed today demonstrates the Department's commitment to pursuing those accused of serious child pornography offenses wherever they may hide on the web and in the world, and to seeking justice for the countless children that are victimized by those who facilitate this horrendous conduct."

Gambino Mob Boss Shooting Suspect Was 'Radicalized' by QAnon, Far Right, Even Trump, Lawyer Says

Brendan McDermid

An attorney for the Staten Island man accused of killing a reputed Gambino mob boss says the 24-year-old suspect was influenced by far-right internet rhetoric and radicalized by the QAnon conspiracy theory and President Donald Trump.

Now that we know for sure that special counsel Robert Mueller, the U.S. intelligence community and Republicans on the House and Senate Intelligence Committees found evidence that President Trump conspired with Russia to hijack the 2016 election, it is worth stepping back and evaluating the electoral impact of one of the greatest faux scandals in history.

Before doing that, though, let's summarize what we now know about the origins of the investigation.

Hillary Clinton and the Democratic National Committee asked their law firm, Tuckers LLP, to hire the political opposition research firm Fusion GPS to dig up dirt during the 2016 election on Trump and Russia. Fusion, in turn, hired former British intelligence operative Christopher Steele, who turned out to be a "retired" Russian intelligence officer in the United States to get most of this dirt.

Steele took his information to the FBI and senior Justice Department official Bruce Ohr to interpret it into law enforcement circles and make it a criminal matter. According to Ohr, Steele was "disparate" to defeat Trump and viewed his dossier as raw intelligence that was not vetted. To augment that research, the Clinton campaign had a Democratic operative working with Steele's embassy in Washington to research Trump's Russia ties, as well as a Ukrainian lawmaker feeding information to Fusion GPS.

In other words, the main evidence used by the FBI to justify a Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) warrant to spy on the Trump campaign in its final weeks before the 2016 election, and for much of 2017, came from a political dirty-trick operation paid by Trump's Democratic rival and run by a foreigner who disliked Trump.

That operation gathered uncorroborated evidence from foreigners in Russia and Ukraine who had their own motives for influencing the election.

Now, if the FBI probe ran with the secrecy of a normal counterintelligence operation, Americans never would have heard all of this, especially when the core allegations — in the Steele dossier — turned out to be bogus.

But the FBI Fusion GPS's Glenn Simpson, Steele, U.S. intelligence officials and lawmakers briefed in Congress all based various details to the news media, creating a furor unseen since Watergate. The only difference is, Watergate involved proven crimes by a president and the Russia collusion narrative ultimately did not.

Simpson acknowledged in a conversation with Ohr that his and Steele's last-minute contacts with reporters during the 2016 election were a "tail Mary attempt" to influence voters.

2 Hill Solomon re 2018 Election Interference 3-25-19.PNG

Over the past two years, I have talked with law enforcement and U.S. intelligence officials who unapologetically told me they found no evidence that Trump and Russia colluded. Yes, Russia hacked Democratic emails and bought some Facebook ads to influence the election, but such activity was not coordinated with the Trump campaign.

Yet, key lawmakers such as Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Calif.) and Sen. Mark Warner (D-Va.) continued to insist there was evidence of collusion, circumstantial or otherwise. They were talking to the same FBI and intelligence agencies as Mueller and I did — and that means what they said in public was not consistent with what they were told in private.

But Schiff, Warner and others found a receptive audience in the news media, where misinformed or inexperienced reporters delivered a 24/7 barrage of stories intended to corroborate a collusion plot that did not exist.

CNN, for example, reported there was evidence a Russian bank's servers secretly transmitted instructions to the Trump Tower. The FBI said it did not.

The New York Times reported senior Trump campaign officials met with senior Russian intelligence to collaborate during the election. The FBI, Congress, U.S. intelligence and Mueller found no such meeting happened, and former FBI Director James Comey publicly debunked the newspaper report.

Carl Bernstein, the reporter of Watergate fame, declared another Russian scandal was brewing and the Mueller report would prove how Trump helped Russia "destabilize" the United States. The report did not.

Former CIA Director John Brennan boldly predicted on MSNBC that Mueller had secured numerous sealed subpoenas. He had not.

In all, more than 530,000 stories were written between May 2017 and this month about a Trump-Russia investigation that, ultimately, found no collusion. The earned media impact of that negative coverage likely would have cost billions of dollars if a Democratic candidate had tried to buy such coverage.

But the news media provided it free of charge, fanned by the commentary of lawmakers and intelligence officials such as Brennan and former National Intelligence Director James Clapper, whose public comments contrasted with the secret intelligence.

As the "impeach Trump" machine raged with fuel provided by Democrats and an earnest media, a furor also happened. More than three dozen Republican incumbents in Congress announced they were retiring in 2018, leaving the GOP with a gaping hole in the House that Democrats exploited.

3 Hill Solomon re 2018 Election Interference 3-25-19.PNG

Polls showed the impact of the Russia coverage on voters. About half of American voters declared they believed Trump or his aides had colluded with Russia, even though they hadn't.

It is the most compelling proof in a long time that false information repeated long enough becomes truth for many people.

Although we are still coming to grips with the finality of the Mueller report, one thing has become increasingly clear: The Russia collusion narrative — fanned by foreigners, dirty tricksters and a willing media — did, in fact, impact an American election. Not the one in 2016, but the midterm that came two years later.
