Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome Coronavirus as an Emerging and Reemerging Infection

or immunization (Table 10). The Koch's postulate model using cynomolgus macaques (17), which demonstrated clinical and pathological similarities to those found in humans, the contrary, African green monkeys (Cercopithecus) did not develop significant lung pathology with the SARS-CoV. The lack of consistency in models of rhesus, cynomolgus, and African or experimental SARS was noted in another review, these large mammals are expensive and BALB/c mice demonstrated asymptomatic virus in lungs and nasal turbinates by intranasal infection was not significantly different from the findings of immunological Th1-biased C57BL/6 B/c mice that were 12 to 14 months old develop pneumonia, which correlated with the ability to acute SARS in humans (287). As 1 knockout-immunodeficient mice had fatal disease (143). Transgenic mice expressing receptors also developed fatal disease, with ex-semination to many organs including the lungs. It is interesting that mouse-adapted SARS-CoV-2

SHOULD WE BE READY FOR THE REEMERGENCE OF SARS?

The medical and scientific community demonstrated marvelous efforts in the understanding and control of SARS within a short time, as evident by over 4,000 publications available online. Despite these achievements, gaps still exist in terms of the molecular basis of the physical stability and transmissibility of this virus, the molecular and immunological basis of disease pathogenesis in humans, screening tests for early or cryptic SARS cases, foolproof infection control procedures for patient care, effective antivirals or antiviral combinations, the usefulness of immunomodulatory agents for late presenters, an effective vaccine with no immune enhancement, and the immediate animal host that transmitted the virus to caged civets in the market at the beginning of the epidemic. Coronaviruses are well known to undergo genetic recombination (375), which may lead to new genotypes and outbreaks. The presence of a large reservoir of SARS-CoV-like viruses in horseshoe bats, together with the culture of eating exotic mammals in southern China, is a time bomb. The possibility of the reemergence of SARS and other novel viruses from animals or laboratories and therefore the need for preparedness should not be ignored.
