Professor Barnhardt: There must be alternatives. You must have some technology that could solve our problem.

Klaatu: Your problem is not technology. The problem is you. You lack the will to change.

Professor Barnhardt: Then help us change.

Klaatu: I cannot change your nature. You treat the world as you treat each other.

Professor Barnhardt: But every civilization reaches a crisis point eventually.

Klaatu: Most of them don't make it.

Professor Barnhardt: Yours did. How?

Klaatu: Our sun was dying. We had to evolve in order to survive.

Professor Barnhardt: So it was only when your world was threatened with destruction that you became what you are now.

Klaatu: Yes.

Professor Barnhardt: Well that's where we are. You say we're on the brink of destruction and you're right. But it's only on the brink that people find the will to change. Only at the precipice do we evolve. This is our moment. Don't take it from us, we are close to an answer.

"Under Director Wray's leadership, the FBI has fully cooperated and been transparent with the review being conducted by U.S. Attorney Jeff Jensen, just as it has been with U.S. Attorney John Durham and was with Inspector General Michael Horowitz," the statement read.

The FBI continued: "With regard to certain documents in the Michael Flynn matter from the 2016-2017 time period that are now the subject of reporting by the press, the FBI previously produced those materials to the Inspector General and U.S. Attorney Durham. The Flynn investigation was initiated and conducted during this time period, under prior FBI leadership. What are IR lasers used for?

Infrared Light and the Military

In the military, infrared lasers are primarily used as laser target designators, which are used with precision-guided munitions to guide munitions. An infrared laser is favored when directing munitions at live targets because light from an infrared laser cannot be seen by the human eye.

Determining exactly what the First Lady might have said via lip reading is complicated by the fact that her lips disappear behind a partition at one point in the clip. 16. Learned something new tonight. Alexa can be customized to say whatever you want.
 (h/t @dazedb42). The answer in the video clip Q linked to clearly was programmed by an end user but no doubt, they came close to the truth.

Video shows how targets are "painted" with IR (infrared) lasers.

Locked on target [painted].
Planned and immediate.
Q

What are IR lasers used for?
Infrared Light and the Military
In the military, infrared lasers are primarily used as laser target designators, which are used with precision-guided munitions to guide munitions. An infrared laser is favored when directing munitions at live targets because light from an infrared laser cannot be seen by the human eye.
