

FEBRUARY

“If this flyer gets you thinking that maybe it is the right time to consider a move, please feel free to reach out to me and we can chat about possible options. I’m always here to answer any questions you or your family may have related to real estate.”

Every year millions of Americans make the decision to move. The number one reason? The yearning to be closer to family. This desire is often driven by life's significant milestones such as growing families, weddings, new jobs and retirements.

If living closer to family isn't possible right now, there are ways that you can strengthen those bonds. This month I am sharing some of those ideas as well as an interesting stat to ponder – living near loved ones may help you live 50% longer.
