

CHILDREN STRAY

Fathers, children sometimes stray,
and try to go there separate way.
They move before they seek his face,
instead of waiting on his grace.
They follow notions of foolish pride,
but a cry rings out from deep inside.

The spirit pleads; Fathers words of life
should guide thy deeds,
Not thyself or mortal desire, only the words
of life, keep you from the fire.
Do not rely on self alone,
by doing so, you deny Fathers throne.

Always seek our Fathers face,
then patiently wait for grace.
And when it pleases Father on His throne,
to enlighten your eyes, and make His will known.
Then do your best to hold onto,
the words of life the spirit gives you.
For in them Fathers love is shown,
and by them Fathers will is known.
