

I.T. can be easy – August 2018 By Steven Dunwell

Three of the best summer apps. Wine, dine and... tan!

Best for BBQ parties – GrillTime

£1.99 on iOS

Two pounds for a BBQ alarm clock? Believe me, GrillTime is worth every penny.

This app allows you to set timers for individual foods, including steak, burgers, chicken, pork, fish, and vegetables.

And it will even tell you how long each type of meat should be grilled for.

And it's also available on Apple Watch.

Best for Wine selections – Delectable

Free for iOS and Android

Delectable has some of the best wine label recognition available, allowing you to easily pull up ratings, reviews and your tasting notes for a particular vintage all from a photograph of a wine's label.

In addition to the label-scanning features, users can keep a personal wine journal of their favorite wines with tasting notes. Cheers!

Best for tanning - UVI Mate

Free for iOS and Android

Everyone loves lounging in the sun, but you should always put your safety first.

Aside from covering yourself in high-factor sunscreen, a UV index app like UVI Mate can also help protect you from sunburn.

Just select your skin type and it will remind you when to apply and re-apply your sun tan lotion.

It can also tell you when to seek some shade and let you track ultraviolet stats wherever you are in the world.

If you have any questions, suggestions for future tips or require assistance with any I.T. challenges, I am very happy help.

Please contact me via email: sdunwell@sky.com

Or call me on: 00351 936 387 512

Have a great month, see you for another tip in September issue.