Live The Liturgy Inspiration of the Week

"Father, they are your gift to me." This is what Christ says of his disciples. It is what he says of us. "I wish that where I am, they also may be with me." Do we have the courage to be where Christ is? Can we be the gift?

Devotions, Explained!

Though it is a less common practice in the modern world, early Church fathers like Tertullian and St. Jerome extolled the importance of praying after a meal, an action meant to inspire an attitude of thanksgiving and an acknowledgment of our dependence on God.

Prayer of Christian Unity

Help us to be one, Lord Jesus, as you prayed to the Father.
Gather us all to you, diverse in culture, gift, call, way of life, and perspective.
May the love we have for you overflow into the love we have for each other.
Amen.

It seems to me that ever since the infamous words were proclaimed from St. Peter's Basilica, "Habemus Papam," that is Latin for, "We Have a Pope," everyone I meet wants to talk about the selection of Pope Leo XIV. As citizens of the United States of America, we are proud and, quite honestly, surprised to have a native son elected as pope.

Yet, I have also heard that he is a pope of the Americas. Why? Because he has dual citizenship; American and Peruvian. Others remark that he is an international pope as he also lived many years in Europe. He is able to speak English, Spanish, Italian, French, and Portuguese. He is able to read Latin and German, two important theological languages. Nevertheless, he is a native son of the United States.

Pope Leo XIV was born and raised in Chicago, Illinois; his parents are of Ecuadorian, French, and Italian descent. He came from humble beginnings. His parents were both involved in education. His father, after serving in the Navy, was a superintendent and his mother was a school librarian. He is one of three boys.

Like Pope Francis, he is a member of a religious order, the Augustinians. Aurelius Augustine, Bishop of Hippo (354 – 430 A.D), founded this missionary order. On their webpage, they describe themselves: We are Christians who, captivated by the example of Saint Augustine, journey together, as we build community and serve the Lord's people.

As with any prominent leader, everyone is wondering whom he is and what he stands for. Only time will tell, but his choosing the name Pope Leo XIV perhaps reveals a bit about his philosophy.

Pope Leo XIII (1878-1903) is often recognized as the father of Catholic social justice, largely based on his 1891 encyclical, "On the Condition of Labor (Rerum Novarum)." This encyclical, and others that followed, transformed Catholic social teaching, and addressed the pressing problems of industrialization and oppression of workers.

When I have taught a class on the encyclicals on Catholic Social Teaching, starting with "Rerum Novarum," and continuing with others from all the Popes who followed, the adult students remarked that these teachings are the Church's best kept secret. It seems to me that Pope Leo XIV will be sharing great nuggets of our Catholic Social Teaching.

So, I write this to open our eyes that Catholic Social Teaching has been a priority for our church from Pope Leo XIII, Pope Pius XI, Saint Pope John XXIII, Pope Paul VI, Saint John Paul II, Pope Benedict XVI and finally Pope Francis.

Even though he will certainly have his own views and teachings on Catholic Social Teaching, he stands on the shoulders of the many great popes who have written their documents on Catholic Social Teaching.

This is a great opportunity for us to educate ourselves on Catholic Social Teaching. Here is a list of some of the major teachings since 1891 and a short summary taken from a Catholic Update, "100-plus Years of Catholic Social Teaching," by Kenneth R. Overberg, SJ, published in 2019 by Liguori publications, Liguori, MO.

Some Key Social Teachings:

1891 Leo XIII, The Condition of Labor [Rerum Novarum]: addresses the pressing problems of industrialization and the oppression of workers.

1931 Pius XI, The Reconstruction of the Social Order (Quadragesimo Anno): responds to the impact of the economic depression; affirms just wages and unions; condemns unequal distribution of wealth; opposes both unrestricted capitalism and Marxism.

1961 St. John XXIII, Christianity and Social Progress (Mater et Magistra): turns to global interdependence and the vast differences between rich and poor nations.

1963 John XXIII, Peace on Earth [Pacem in Terris]: presents a detailed analysis of human dignity and rights; affirms democracy and the rights of press, speech, and religion.

1965 Vatican II, Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World [Gaudium et Spes]: emphasizes the scriptural views of the human person; addresses critical issues of marriage, culture, economics, politics, war, and peace.

1967 Paul VI, The Development of Peoples (Populorum Progressio): explores the deeper meaning of development—cultural, social, religious needs, along with economic ones; urges fair trade relations and other forms of international cooperation.

1971 Synod of Bishops, Justice in the World: stresses the preferential option for the poor and the reform of society so that all persons may actively participate in the economic, political, and cultural life of their society.

1981 St. John Paul II, On Human Work (Laborer Exercens): emphasizes the primacy of people over things; develops a spirituality of work.

1987 St. John Paul II, On Social Concern (Sollicitudo Rei Socialis): discusses the massive economic gap between North and South (in terms of global hemispheres); urges redirection of resources from producing arms to alleviating the misery of impoverished peoples.

1991 St. John Paul II, On the Hundredth Anniversary of Rerum Novarum [Centesimus Annus]: indicates how key themes of Leo XIII's encyclical remain valid for today's world; affirms and critiques capitalism.

1995 St. John Paul II, The Gospel of Life (Evangelium Vitae): defends life from womb to tomb; discusses abortion, euthanasia, self-defense, the death penalty, and the relationship between civil and moral law."

2009 Benedict XVI, Charity in Truth [Caritas in Veritate]: marks the fortieth, anniversary of Paul VI's The Development of Peoples; addresses the global financial crisis and discusses positive and negative aspects of globalization.

2015 Pope Francis, On Care for Our Common Home (Laudato Si): speaks to being good stewards of creation. Francis refers to it as a calling: "Living our vocation to be protectors of God's handiwork is essential to a life of virtue," (217).
