Women of today sit up and take notice - your time has come.
You are on the threshold of life, eager and ready to go.

The woman of today is 3 dimensional

The Carrer : You want to have a rewarding job

The Home : Happy marriage, children and a comfortable home

You belong to Generation X, you want to have it all!

We, the Inner Wheel Club of Coimbatore understand the tasks women are faced with today.

A seminar "Challenges" to guide and introduce you to a smooth transition as you step over the threshold and go into the world as talented & enterprising young women.

Rotarian Krishnaraj Vanavarayar, Chairman - Bharathiya Vidhya Bhavan, inaugurates and gives us an overlook of the demands on today's women.

Other imminent speakers can be expected to introduce lively interaction - no sermons!
Floor participation is expected and welcomed!

Learn about stress management at home and outside.

Learn about time management - how to do everything you wanted to do.

Learn about Leadership qualities - if you don't inherit it, develop it.

A few successful women of Coimbatore will share interesting anecdotes about their struggles up the ladder of success.

Which rung do you stand?

What can you learn from their experiences?

 movie-goers, more often than not, after the theatre only after the screening of documentary shot is because the way of presentation is unimaginative. One has to use a lot of imagination to propagate the government schemes among the masses. But documents produced by private agencies attract the notice of the common masses.

The communication frontier has been revolutionised over the years with various inventions to speed up the process of communication as we are living in the Internet era.

Modern communication equipment like radio, television and mobile phone have become indispensable these days besides the print and electronic media, as they play a vital role in disseminating information.

One of the important contributions of these technologies is seen in the eradication and control of many deadly diseases such as smallpox and polio. And the results have been good.

In India, in the past few years there is an effort being made to make the country polio-free. The government, with help from the WHO, had talked out plans to eradicate polio in the year 2005 with the Pulse Polio Immunisation Programme. An intense drive against polio was launched in all the States with the active involvement of non-government organisations such as Rotary Clubs and Lions Clubs.

This year too the programme was conducted on December 2 with great success. In Coimbatore district the administration had targeted to cover about five lakh children under the programme and also to create awareness among their, which is a challenging task.

However, the Rotary International District 3200 took it as a challenge and made effective use of modern communication facilities

Rotarian V V Sriraman, district Chairman-Polio Plus, said the RI District 3200 stands first among the 28 RI districts in India for the successful eradication of polio. The RI District 3200, for the purpose, printed publicity materials in the form of comic books (on the lines of Phantom books), greeting cards, posters, banners and hand bills besides video and audio cassettes. Aprons and caps were also produced.

Of the publicity materials, the audio cassettes containing polio messages have been produced in the most imaginative and commendable manner. They carry polio messages in Tamil and Malayalam and the message is laced with scintillating film songs so as to have the attention of the listeners. The Tamil audio cassettes contained popular hits like 'Mala, mala marudha mala', 'Vaseegara' etc and the Malayalam cassettes have been produced in a similar fashion to attract the attention of listeners. Hundreds of video and audio cassettes have been produced and distributed to the immunisation booths, according to Sriraman.

Rotary also hopes that the second phase on January 14 will be a big success.

District Rotary Governor K A Kuriachan inaugurated the first National Immunisation Day at the Seethalakshmi maternity centre on December 2, 2001.

want to use time effectively from this New Year," she says.

Not all are serious, though. There are some happy-go-lucky persons like V Y Sangeetha, another B Com student. "I've made many resolutions just to break them," she says. "My friends tell me that I am very lazy. I am an NCC cadet. Though I wake up early in the morning while at the camp, I am the last person to get ready to go. So, I want to be fast and prompt from 2002," she adds.

Besides studies, V Ananthapriya wants to do something that would have her name etched in history. "I will help others to make them happy," she says.

Krithika and Namini are of the view that we should not give up our culture for the sake of being modern. They add that just for the sake of money we should not give up our values. "So, the resolution of the youth should be to uphold one's cultural values," they declare.

All of them are also in tune with the times. They feel that the tolerance level among people has come down. "That is why terrorism is increasing everywhere," they point out. We should not develop hatred. "Forget and forgive should be our main New Year resolution." So true. So very true.

At Meenakshi Annam Temple and Tiruchi Malaikottai Temple. All these are made of wood belonging to the Nettimaram variety and are encased in glass cabinets. The Thanjavur Brahadeeswara model, which costs Rs 5,300, has been provided serial lamps around it to add to its beauty.

The 'Basket Dog' which has been brought from New Delhi is another special attraction at the fair. It costs Rs 123 and is made of plaster of paris. Another feast Apart from these seasonal fairs, a permanent counter for Kanchi silk and cotton sarees has been opened at the showroom. Prices of sarees at this counter range from Rs 500 to Rs 5000.

"Last year also we conducted a similar fair. Enthused by its success we decided to extend the fair up to New Year," says Subbiah, Manager of the Poompuhar Showroom. "The sales target fixed for this fair is Rs 10 lakh," says the Manager.

For Crispy Chicken, single-bone chicken slices are used. They are then marinated with different sauces which makes it crispy. Also bread crumbs are added to make it more crispier.

Korean Steak is made by sorting the boneless breast of a chicken in a sauce.

While serving these dishes the essence is not just in serving them hot but also in the way they are served. The dishes are to be neatly 'decorated' and making them pleasing to the eyes.

Wilson Fan says that the four dishes are already a great hit among the regular customers. "What they like best is that these dishes taste so very different from other regular Chinese dishes," he adds.

The calm aura of the restaurants, the neatly laid out tables and the ever-smiling employees only add to the 'taste' of the experience. A visit to the both the restuarants gives one the Oriental feel.
