This menu celebrates the stories, memoirs & essays of women who have shared French cuisine with us. Their writing reveals the warm, rich cultural heritage of France, captured in everyday meals and monumental moments of love and loss. You'll taste dishes inspired by words that honor la cuisine bourgeoise - the simple, heartfelt cooking of the French middle class, far from the elaborate dishes of renowned restaurants.

These rituals & traditions, passed from mother to daughter, bring to life simmering pots of coq au vin, slow-roasted pork dripping over coals, and warm tarts beckoning the family to the table.

But most of all, they teach us that this is a cuisine to be shared, just as we'll do at this meal.
