QUOTES

"Inclusion is not one lesson plan or INSET day. It's a thread that runs through culture, curriculum and leadership."

"Inclusion succeeds when it is designed in, not added on."

"Schools deserve practical tools, not impossible expectations."

"What teachers need is not more pressure, but structured support that strengthens curriculum, policy and classroom culture in ways that genuinely improve outcomes for young people."

ABOUT REIMAGINING EDUCATION

Reimagining Education is a London-based consultancy specialising in Equity, Diversity & Inclusion (EDI), leadership, curriculum development and whole-school culture. We partner with state, independent and MAT schools to deliver strategic support, research-informed improvement and leadership development. Our work spans fractional EDI leadership, staff training, policy review, curriculum design and student voice, supporting schools to build inclusive, high-performing environments.

ABOUT KRYSTIAN MCINNIS

Krystian McInnis is an education consultant, speaker and co-founder of Reimagining Education. He works nationally and internationally across public, private and faith-based sectors, specialising in EDI leadership, curriculum strategy and whole-school culture.

His portfolio includes consultancy for The Church of England, BBC and Greensand Multi Academy Trust, as well as curriculum writing for national bodies, fractional EDI leadership in independent schools and coaching for multi-academy trusts.

Krystian is committed to supporting schools to realise the full potential of every learner by building communities where dignity, belonging and aspiration are central.
