Sales decline by two per cent from last year amidst COVID-19 pandemic

Jun. 2020

City of Calgary, July 2, 2020 - After three months where COVID-19 weighed heavily on the housing market, sales activity in June continued to trend up from the previous month, totaling 1,747 units.

Caution remains necessary as monthly sales are nearly two per cent lower than activity recorded last year.

However, this represents a significant improvement compared to the past several months where year-over-year declines exceeded 40 per cent.

“Recent price declines, easing mortgage rates and early easing of social restrictions are likely contributing to the better-than-expected sales this month,” said CREB® chief economist Ann-Marie Lurie.

“However, the market remains far from normal. Challenges, such as double-digit unemployment rates, will continue to weigh on the market for months to come.”

New listings in June totalled 3,335 units, a six per cent increase over last year. The recent rise in new listings caused inventories to trend up, but they remain well below last year’s levels.

Despite some recent monthly gains in supply, sales activity was high enough to cause the months of supply to dip below four months for the first time since May 2019. If this trend continues, it should help to ease the downward pressure on prices.

Residential benchmark prices are comparable to last month, but remain nearly three per cent lower than last year’s levels.

Detached

- Sales activity in June totalled 1,092 units. This is an improvement over the past few months and is only slightly lower than last year’s levels.
- Despite citywide declines, year-over-year sales activity improved in the City Centre, North East, North, South East and East districts.
- June also saw an increase in new listings, which is causing some monthly gains in inventory. However, increased sales offset the rise in new listings, causing the months of supply to trend toward more balanced conditions.
- Detached benchmark prices remained relatively stable compared to last month but were two per cent lower than last year’s levels. Year-over-year price declines were recorded across most districts, with the largest declines in the North West, North East and City Centre districts.

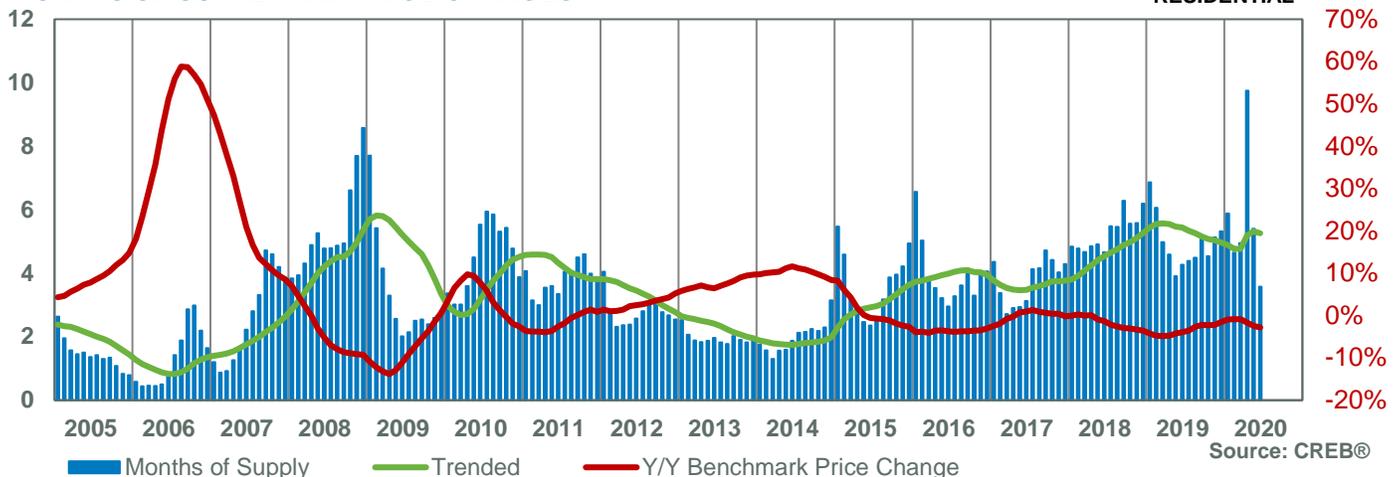

Apartment

- Apartment sales totalled 227 units in June. This is an improvement from the 136 units last month, but it is still over 13 per cent lower than last year’s levels and over 30 per cent lower than longer-term averages.
- New listings rose compared to last month and last year. This did translate into some monthly inventory gains, but overall inventory levels remain lower than last year’s levels.
- The months of supply has come down from the high levels recorded over the past few months.
- Benchmark prices continued to trend down this month, totalling $240,900. This is a year-over-year decline of nearly four per cent.
- The resale apartment sector continues to be one of the hardest hit in terms of relative declines in both sales and prices.

Attached

- The attached sector has faced the smallest impact from the pandemic. June sales were nearly three per cent higher than last year’s levels and remain comparable to longer-term averages. The attached sector has generally benefited from its status as a more affordable alternative to the detached sector.
- Like the detached sector, the attached sector saw new listings rise compared to both last year and last month. However, the months of supply trended toward more balanced conditions and improved over last year’s levels.
- Benchmark prices remained relatively stable compared to the previous month, but fell by nearly four per cent compared to last year. The higher price decline in this sector could be a contributing factor to the improving sales activity.

DEFINITIONS

Benchmark Price - Represents the monthly price of the typical home based on its attributes such as size, location and number of bedrooms.

MLS® Home Price Index - Changes in home prices by comparing current price levels relative to January 2005 price level.

Absorption Rate - Refers to the ratio between the amount of sales occurring in the market relative to the amount of inventory.

Months of Supply - Refers to the ratio between inventory and sales which represents at the current pace of sales how long it would take to clear existing inventory.

Detached - A unit that is not attached to any other unit.

Semi-detached - A single dwelling built as one of a pair that share one common wall.

Row - A single dwelling attached to each other by a common wall with more than two properties in the complex.

Attached - Both row and semi-detached properties.

Apartment - A unit within a high rise or low rise condominium building with access through an interior hallway.

Total Residential - Includes detached, attached and apartment style properties.

Exclusions - Data included in this package do not include activity related to multiple-unit sales, rental, land or leased properties.
