Tammy's Touch

In times when the world feels big and scary . . . make it small.

Look no further than your neighborhood, your school, your church, your town . . . the places you find kindness and community.

You don't have to fix the entire planet, but you can certainly start in your own backyard.

Turn off the news, put down your phone, and lean into the people closest to you—the family, friends, and neighbors who make you feel seen and heard and loved.

The helpers and do-gooders. The listeners and supporters. The ones who don't judge and don't keep score. The ones who won't hesitate to lend a hand, the ones who would give you the shirts off their backs, the ones who invite you into their homes and into their hearts. The ones who make you feel safe.

This world can be so overwhelming.

Make it small....Shower Arguments with Emily Solb
