The Jural Society DETERMINES THE FOLLOWING:

I.

SUMMARY OF CASE

This case comes as a result of multiple affiant Nationals making complaints about the legal and economic services of jurist K'in Way Xi and his law association NU WAYS LEGAL (NU WAYS LLC). Their claims were that his service was not efficient, and was not in accord with ARNA Laws, protocols, and applicable contracts. The services were eventually completed by ARNA Aboriginal Law Firm for two of the Nationals stated above. The complaint pleaded to clarify the matters between all parties seeking relief and remedy, to highlight any breaches of law, codes and protocols to resolve the disputes between all parties, and allow for any injunctions or equity remedies required for breach of jural services as an aboriginal jurist.

Two plea deals were offered by the Executive Prosecution that would resolve the entirety of the claims as an arbitration agreement between all parties. The Executive Prosecution stated that a plea agreement would allow the defendant K'in Way Xi to avoid the possibility of a guilty verdict at trial which could affect his status as a jurist. Defendant rejected both plea agreements and elected to proceed towards a trial hearing on the merits. The claims and charges against the defendants are as follows:
