SOUL DIVE ANNOUNCES DEBUT SINGLE “SHELL OF A MAN” AND RISING MOMENTUM IN PITTSBURGH ROCK SCENE

Emerging teenage band captures attention with electrifying live shows, top-tier studio collaboration, and upcoming media appearances

PITTSBURGH, PA — A new force is building in the Pittsburgh rock scene, and its name is Soul Dive. Made up of a group of teenage musicians with a sound far beyond their years, this alternative rock band blends youthful punk revival and post grunge influences, quickly gaining attention for something that cannot be manufactured—true on-stage chemistry.

Formed through a shared love of music and a commitment to craftsmanship, Soul Dive has been honing its sound across Pittsburgh’s live circuit, including notable appearances at venues like 565 Live and performances connected to community-driven events such as the Northside Music Festival. They have also developed their identity in creative hubs like Launch Music Conference and Millvale Music Festival—spaces that have played a foundational role in shaping their evolving sound.

It is there that their style took form: gritty guitar riffs, driving rhythms, and a willingness to stretch songs live, allowing each performance to evolve organically.

“They don’t just play songs—they experience them together in real time,” said one local supporter. “There’s a level of trust and instinct between them that you usually don’t see this early.”

That instinct has now been carried into the studio. Soul Dive is currently working with acclaimed producer Greg Gordon, known for collaborations with artists such as Greta Van Fleet and Bob Weir, alongside co-producer Rob Deaner. Together, they are crafting a sound that remains true to the band’s live energy while benefiting from world-class production experience. “Soul Dive reminds me of why I got into record making,” says Greg Gordon. “Pure clear energy and the electric drive to harness that passion. Great bands are timeless in any decade. Soul Dive transcends.”

Their debut single, “Shell of a Man,” will be released June 5, serving as the first offering from an upcoming full-length album due later this year. Recorded at The Vault Recording Studio in Pittsburgh—home to top-tier equipment including the Neve board and a meticulously designed studio architecture—the project emphasizes authenticity over overproduction, resulting in a sound that feels immediate, raw, and alive.

To mark the release, Soul Dive will appear on The Scott Tady Show on 95.7 The Beaver for a special in-studio performance. The band will perform their debut single live on-air, along with additional songs from the upcoming album, giving listeners an early glimpse into their evolving catalog.

Soul Dive features:

- Luca Becker — vocals and guitar
- Cristiano Kinol — guitar
- Santino Kinol — drums and keys
- Rylan Ivanisin — bass

With a growing local following, increasing media exposure, and undeniable live presence, Soul Dive is positioning itself as a band to watch—not just for what they have released, but for what happens when they step on stage.
