SOUL DIVE RELEASES ITS FIRST-EVER ALBUM, “STAIRDIVING” WITH A STAGE AE SHOW OCTOBER 4th.

PITTSBURGH, PA — Soul Dive, the high school-aged rock band from Pittsburgh, celebrates the release of its debut album, “Stairdiving” on September 25, which topped 25,000 streams on Spotify in the first 24 hours and is nearing 60,000 views on Youtube. With echoes of The Clash and Green Day throughout the tracks, “Stairdiving” drives with the intensity of classic punk rock but mixes in grunge and soul influences for an all-around rock production.

Already capturing the attention of national acts, Soul Dive opened for Modern Alibi and Love Scar on their local tour stops in June. Soul Dive also performed at the Millvale Music Festival and the North Side Music Festival. Drusky Entertainment booked them as the headline act on a packed July 15 show at Jergel’s Rhythm Grille. Coming events include an album release show at Stage AE on Oct. 4, and a return date to Jergel’s Rhythm Grille on Dec 17.

Headlined by punk singles “Shell of a Man”, “Bender” and “Myrtle Beach”, along with previously unreleased “Mirrors”, the 12-song album “Stairdiving” expands Soul Dive’s songwriting reach with soulful tracks “Ain’t No Other”, “Denver”, “When I was Down”, “Tall Girl Existential Crisis” and “I’m Still”. Following up their popular debut release of “Shell of a Man” which they performed live in-studio on Scott Tady’s Beaver County Radio Morning show, and “Bender” which was performed live on 102.5 WDVE Friday morning Coffee House, the release of “Stairdiving” will be celebrated with an all-ages show at Stage AE.

Recorded at The Vault Recording Studio in Coraopolis and developed by respected co-producers Greg Gordon (Greta Van Fleet/Oasis/Public Enemy/Run DMC) and Rob Deaner (Billy Idol/John Waite), the new single harkens back to the heyday of grunge and punk, but detonates with a style that is fresh, youthful and new.

“Soul Dive already possesses what many bands spend years trying to recapture: the feeling that things might just spin out of control,” said ExtravaRock in a review.

“Great bands are timeless in any decade,” said producer Greg Gordon. “Soul Dive transcends.”

Made up of Luca Becker (vocals, guitar), Cristiano Kinol (guitar), Santino Kinol (drums) and Rylan Ivanisin (bass), Soul Dive has quickly become one of the most talked-about young bands emerging from the Pittsburgh music scene. Their performances at local festivals, venues, showcases and even backyards have earned a reputation for delivering the kind of chemistry and live energy that can’t be manufactured.
