Letter from the President

Happy New Year to one and all! After listening to everyone complain last month about winter tiptoeing in like a pussy cat, Christmas and New Year's week went out more like a snow leopard. The trouble with cold, sunny weather is that your shadow tends to freeze to the pavement! Speaking of pavement, I was quite surprised yesterday to look out the front window and find a great blue heron standing on my front sidewalk looking in the dining room window. I'm not sure what he expected to find, but he certainly complained as he flew away empty-beaked.

Don't let a little cold weather keep you indoors this month! Join us on January 20 at the Timberman Ridge Welcome Center for a winter tree identification walk.

See you in the parks,
Bill Walker, President FOMPBC

Winter at MetroParks

By Lynette Dean, Program Manager, Park Connections

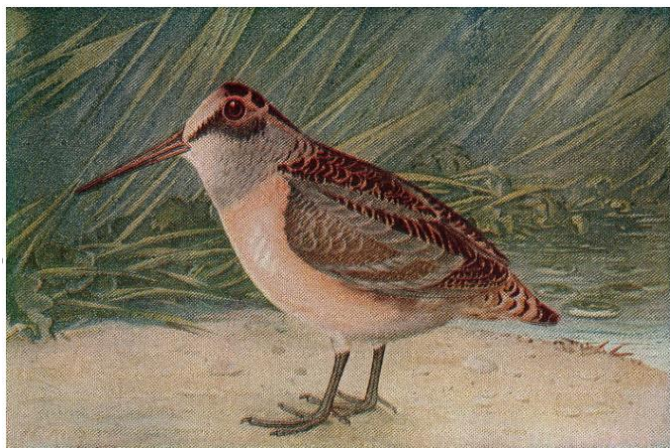

I was asked by someone, "So, what do you do in the winter time since the parks are closed?" It's not the first time I've been asked that question. There is a misconception that parks, in general, shut down during the winter months. That is far from true.

There are many ways to enjoy the parks even in the winter months. Bundle up for a winter hike, observe the winter wildlife, build a snowman, have a snowball fight or join us for the upcoming programs below.

Winter Break Night Hike, Wed., December 27 6:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m. at Forest Run MetroParks' Wildlife Preserve

Mystery of the Winter Woods – Winter Tree ID, Sat. January 20, 10:00 a.m. – 12:00 a.m. Forest Run MetroParks' Timberman Ridge

Blue Moon Hike, Wed., January 31, 6:30 p.m. – 8:30 p.m. at Rentschler Forest MetroParks' Reigart Road Area

Woodcock Wooing, Sat., February 10, 5:30 p.m. – 7:00 p.m. Elk Creek MetroParks' Sebald park Area

'Owl at the Black Moon, Sat., February 24, 6:30 p.m. – 8:30 p.m. Governor Bebb MetroPark

There will also be two school's day out camps on Monday January 15th and Monday February 19th as well as Show & Tells on the Farm Thursdays at 10:00 a.m. and Sundays at 2:00 p.m. PM. You can also pre-register for the Salamander Adventure program that will occur when the Indian Creek salamanders migrate.

Behind the scenes MetroParks staff members are busy preparing for the upcoming warmer weather seasons. Operations staff are planning the priorities for park maintenance. Finance staff are working on the new fiscal year's budget. Planning is involved in upcoming park projects. Park Connections staff are working on the details of all the programs, special events and service days that will roll out next year. All MetroParks departments are busy getting ready for 2018.

Animals in Winter

What do we do to make it through the cold winter? Drink hot chocolate with marshmallows, wear warm socks and fun colored long johns. How do our resident animals survive the cold, harsh winter months? They have 3 choices: migrate, tolerate or hibernate. Did you know that we have animals hibernating the winter wonderland away below our feet? Groundhogs (otherwise known as woodchucks and whistle pigs) spend a lot of time preparing for this annual body changing experience. Starting in late summer, these furry critters increase their intake of plants to build up their fat reserves. How does an animal survive months with only fat reserves for nourishment? Groundhogs undergo a severe change as they prepare for this hibernation state. To appreciate what is occurring, let's compare humans to groundhogs. Humans go into mild hypothermia if our body temperature drops 3 degrees F and comatose by 90 degrees F. The body temperature of the groundhog goes from 99 degrees F to as low as 38 degrees F. Their temperature isn't the only thing that changes drastically. Their heart rate will be reduced from 90 beats per minute to about 5 beats per minute, too.

Besides eating more vegetation (to the chagrin of some gardeners), they also prepare winter housing by building a burrow in a wooded or brushy area below the frost line. This helps to keep their immediate environment at a stable temperature. In general, a groundhog's burrow can range in length from 8 to 66 feet with multiple levels, chambers and exits.

Groundhogs hibernate in late fall for about three months. The males will awaken early and venture out of their dens to make house calls on the females as early as February. After checking on potential mates, these “Romeos” return to bed and sleep till March.

The timing of mating is important, as with many other animal species. If the babies are born too late, they can’t get enough weight put on for the upcoming winter season. If they are born too early, there isn’t enough food available to survive. Unlike their prairie dog cousins, ground hogs are basically loners; except during mating season. The babies are born naked and blind and once weaned are encouraged to begin their loner lifestyle like their parents.

How does the most famous groundhog Punxsutawney Phil from Pennsylvania help us besides predict the final date of winter on February 2, 2018? Scientists are studying how the groundhog’s brain doesn’t utilize as much oxygen while it is in hibernation. They want to apply this principle to a human brain to help alleviate stroke damage. They are also studying the hormone which helps the whistle pig relax into hibernation for use in transplants and heart attack patients. And some gardeners thought they were only pests...

Winter Tree Identification

Many of us are used to relying on leaves to help us identify the type of tree. That works fine for half the year, but what do we do the rest of the time? Evergreens are usually not too much of a challenge. Thorns, nuts, seeds, and bark are other useful characteristics that can help identify similar looking trees, as can the overall shape of the tree itself. Come and join us at Timberman Ridge Welcome Center on January 20th to learn the secrets of the MadBuck and other tree ID secrets.
