No. 1 Bob Feeney

Or beware the limping golfer.....

A devout church going royalist, Bob is seen here in a rare smiling pose - something due to be seen again when Mercury once more disappears behind Uranus (sic).

Was transferred to Australia as part of the deal that brought Dame Edna to the UK but returned to these shores wearing high heels and carrying armfuls of gladioli. It was due to this questionable footwear that he first began suffering with knee problems; something which will happily be rectified in the near future when he becomes Bionic Bob!

Captain of the vets in 2011/12, he brings a wealth of experience, technique and most importantly hot coffee to winter Perch games whilst he is a formidable opponent in summer matches, occasionally dazzling opponents with a flash of Feeney leg.

As convenor of the legendary Vets Working Party, Bob can frequently be seen either directing his fellow workers or setting light to anything that doesn't move, something brought from his former life as a trustworthy estate agent.

In his spare time Bob likes nothing more than writing and presenting quizzes for his adoring public. He can sometimes be seen listening sympathetically to quizzers who have a query about one of his brain teasers before informing them that he is right and really couldn't give a toss!
