No. 7 Baldev Sehmbi

or He plays off of what?

Our 2015/16 Vets Captain has had a remarkable season leading by example whilst only dropping a couple of points in all of his matches.

Before embarking on his Vets golfing career Bal blazed a trail in the burgeoning computer industry.

We are indebted to him for our pre-match breakfasts as he provided the hardware for our toastmasters to ply their trade.

He also provided the new club flag which flies proudly above the putting green. No one is certain if inches and cm were used in the workshop - it may just be that the flagpole was doubled in size at the same time.

A very happy driver, either with club or steering wheel in hand. Many of his formative miles were spent ploughing a repeated furrow down the A127 to Southend to visit local landmarks. Since then he has regularly volunteered to ferry fellow golfers to and from various venues in Bal's Bus.

One of a handful of vets to have played on Pebble Beach (before Southend imported sand), last year he graduated to the real thing in California, adding it to an impressive array of tracks played.

When not in the UK, family Sehmbi can be found away from our chilly shores, wintering in sunnier climes - and who can blame them!

One thing is for sure, Bal will be a formidable opponent again this year, whether it is in inter-club matches, club tournaments or just a weekly roll-up.
