

- Whereas, the broad definition of inclusive education recognizes the right of every student – without exception. It involves adapting the environment and teaching approaches to ensure genuine and full participation of all students. It embraces human diversity and welcomes all as equal members of an educational community; and
- Whereas, research overwhelmingly supports inclusive education, which yields positive outcomes for social justice and a sense of community and belonging. Inclusive schools provide benefits for learning outcomes and for the social, behavioral and physical development of every student; and
- Whereas, National PTA advocates for policies and legislation that ensure equity for every student, are grounded in social justice and support the whole child and family. We know that students of all races, religions, abilities and socioeconomic statuses can reach their full potential when the school environment is one in which they feel truly valued; and
- Whereas, the Michigan Department of Education’s Top 10 Strategic Education Plan recognizes in one of its Guiding Principles that all students have the right to high-quality instruction regardless of their gender, sexual orientation, ethnicity, race, economic status, native language, or physical, emotional, and cognitive abilities, and this access will improve educational outcomes for our students to close the student achievement and opportunity gaps that currently exist. Now, therefore, be it
