Happy Halloween, everyone!

This week is always one of the most spirited (and most entertaining) times of the school year. Costumes, candy, and creativity are everywhere, and I love seeing how much fun our students and staff have celebrating together.

While Halloween is all about a few friendly frights, it's also a great reminder that school spirit doesn't have to be spooky to stand out. Whether you're dressing up, decorating, or just cheering on your classmates, your enthusiasm brings our school to life.

So as we head into the week, let's enjoy the fun, but also remember to be safe, be kind, and look out for each other. Have fun, make memories, and maybe save a piece of candy for your principal!

Stay spirited!

SCIENCE FUN FACT

During the fall, a brown bear eats practically around the clock, stocking up for the four to seven months when it'll have to live off stored body fat. A brown bear may chow down on 90 pounds of food each day.

MATH IN EVERYDAY LIFE

Baking is also one of the many examples of math used in the real world. To make your produce good and well-cooked, you need to rely heavily on proportions, scaling, percentages, and measurements. If we speak about bakers in cafes and restaurants, they use arithmetic to manage inventory, calculate the cooking time, convert units between measurement systems, and determine costs.
