

onespot[™]
allergy

INFORMED TRUSTED SOLUTIONS[™]

Onespot[™] Allergy Blog is written by Elizabeth Goldenberg, Canada's Allergy Legal Expert & Brand Advocate. She's a Canadian lawyer and mother to two sons, one of whom has a life-threatening allergy to peanuts and tree nuts.

Elizabeth Goldenberg, Onespot Allergy President & Founder

Home

Products

About

Contact

enter search term & click enter

I'm truly excited to introduce you to Robin Wilson, an eco-friendly interior designer and lifestyle expert (www.robinwilsonhome.com) based in Manhattan. With an incredible portfolio of design work on projects including the White House Fellows office, President Clinton's Harlem office and Robert F. Kennedy Jr.'s private residence, she has a "classic with a modern touch" design aesthetic.

What connected Robin Wilson to me is that she has allergies and asthma, and she has just launched her first ever hypoallergenic pillows for everyone who endures the wheezing and sneezing associated with these conditions. Her goal is to spread awareness and help others realize there are options out there to make their lives more comfortable. To order the hypoallergenic pillow, visit the Robin Wilson Home Facebook page by clicking here.

In addition to launching a hypoallergenic pillow, Robin Wilson has launched a hypoallergenic textile line. I hear from readers frequently whose children have broken out in rashes or hives from contact with fabric or carpet. It's amazing to me that textiles can be so toxic, and I see the distress that can cause.

It's very exciting to me that Robin Wilson is in the know about these issues, and she's created affordable products that we can trust. The secret is innovative weave technology designed to prevent allergen triggers from penetrating the bedding. This also allows for a quick drying process, which not only makes the products energy efficient, this adds a little known bonus: Dust mites die in a dry or moistureless environment, so this product feature is very beneficial for anyone allergic to dust and the mites that feed on it.

As Ms. Wilson says: "I am inspired by a lifestyle focused on wellness. The Robin Wilson Home collection brings a beautifully designed aesthetic with hypoallergenic qualities. It will allow a consumer at any budget to afford an eco-friendly bedding option."

Ms. Wilson is definitely a designer who is making a difference. In June 2011, she was named an Ambassador to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America (www.aafa.org) with a platform to educate consumers about healthy indoor air quality and eco-friendly product options. As one of every four people in the United States (over 60 million Americans) live restricted lifestyles due to allergies and asthma, she feels it's very important to help consumers reduce the amount of toxins in the home. I agree with Ms. Wilson wholeheartedly.

ABOUT ROBIN WILSON HOME

Robin Wilson Home is a Manhattan-based interior design firm focused on designing environments that promote healthy living. Ms. Wilson is the first woman to license her brand to eco-friendly cabinetry sold at over 500 dealers nationwide. She is author of Kennedy Green House (Greenleaf, 2010) and is regularly featured in print and on television to provide expert commentary about eco-friendly issues and eco-friendly design. Learn more at www.robinwilsonhome.com.