In the year of Our Lord 1792, on the 13th day of September, by decree of the National French Assembly, Ignatius Hopp, called Lempfridt, was separated from his flock, cast out of his parish, and sent into exile. Being steadfastly faithful to religion, to the Catholic Church, and to his king, he refused to take that impious oath which was commonly called the "civic" oath, and rather chose to suffer all manner of evils than to obey the scandalous and atheistic decrees of the regicides. In this exile he remained for one year, one month, and five days. At last, after the regicidal French — commonly called "patriots" — had been defeated by the Austrians, on the 18th of October of the following year, he returned again to his parish. After an exhortation addressed to the people, and the reconciliation of the Church, he offered the tremendous sacrifice of the Mass and began again to perform his pastoral office. Here begins the list of those who were baptized by the legitimate priest, returned to the parish.

Hic incipit series illorum qui baptizati sunt a pastore legitimo reduce in Parochiam.

This sentence, at the end of the schismatic baptisms, introduces the remainder of the register, baptisms performed by the legitimate priest, Ignatius Hopp, called Lempfridt, from October 13, 1793 to December 15, 1793. 'Returned' refers to Father Hopp returning from exile.

Schismatic Baptisms

On July 12, 1790, during the revolution, France adopted the Civil Constitution of the Clergy, which fundamentally reorganized the Catholic Church, and required the clergy to swear an oath of loyalty to the French Constitution. This led to a schism, lasting until Napoleon's Concordat of 1801, between those clergy who accepted the Civil Constitution (schismatics) and those who remained loyal to the Pope.

Ignatius Hopp, called Lempfridt, pastor of St. Michael's Church in Soufflenheim, refused to take the oath, and was exiled on September 13, 1792 by decree of the National French Assembly. Schismatic baptisms begin two days later with Maria Anna Schoeffter on September 15, 1792. Father Hopp left the country in October, going to Rastatt on the other side of the Rhine River, replaced by Alexander Ficker, who had taken the oath.

The records on images 120-133 document a special event that took place on November 4, 1793. In these records, the baptisms of the babies born from September 15, 1792 to September 1, 1793 were performed by the midwife during the time of the schism (tempore schisma). On his return, exiled priest Ignatius Hopp performed, on November 4th, a collective ceremony of supplementary anointings to validate the schismatic baptisms of the past year. The text above the first record on image 120 describe the story of the schism, the exile of the priest, and the measures he took when he came back:

“In the year of Our Lord 1792, on the 13th day of September, by decree of the National French Assembly, Ignatius Hopp, called Lempfridt, was separated from his flock, cast out of his parish, and sent into exile. Being steadfastly faithful to religion, to the Catholic Church, and to his king, he refused to take that impious oath which was commonly called the “civic” oath, and rather chose to suffer all manner of evils than to obey the scandalous and atheistic decrees of the regicides. In this exile he remained for one year, one month, and five days. At last, after the regicidal French — commonly called “patriots” — had been defeated by the Austrians, on the 18th of October of the following year, he returned again to his parish. After an exhortation addressed to the people, and the reconciliation of the Church, he offered the tremendous sacrifice of the Mass and began again to perform his pastoral office. The following acts he recorded in this book in the best manner he could, he who commends himself to the prayers of his own among the [...]: Signature: Ign. Hopp, called Lemfridt, pastor.”

The first date in each record is the birth and schismatic baptism. The second date, for all records, is November 4, 1793, the exorcism and supplementary ceremony. Example: Richardis Drechsler, 01 September 1793, “She was baptized by a midwife at the time of the Schism in her father's house. The ceremonies of exorcism and the ancient rites were completed on the fourth day of November of the same year.”

Sixty-six births/schismatic baptisms were performed by the midwife from September 15, 1792 to September 1, 1793, and one by vicar Alexander Ficker: Joannes Baptista Von de Weyer on July 15, 1793, for those who survived to participate in the November 4th ceremony. There are no records from September 2, 1793 to October 12, 1793. Non-schismatic baptisms resume with Catharina Nuber on October 13, 1793.

Additional schismatic baptisms were performed with those that did not survive, such as twins Catharina and Ignatius Eck on September 28, 1792 (series 2 image 121): “Because of the urgency of death and schism in their father's house, they were baptized by the midwife Maria Anna Hasser shortly after their death”. (Propter instantin morteue et schismatis in doma paterna ab obstetric Maria Anna Hasser baptizati sunt paulo post mortui.), and N.N. (nomen nescio - name unknown) Daul on June 17, 1792 (series 2 image 111), “baptized by the midwife in expectation of the infant's imminent death”.

The sentence at the end of the schismatic baptisms introduces the remainder of the register: “Here begins the list of those who were baptized by the legitimate priest [Ignatius Hopp], returned to the parish”, so not schismatic. Baptisms from October 13th to November 18th are unsigned. Baptisms from November 21, 1793 to December 15, 1793 are signed by Ignatius Hopp, and from December 19, 1793 to December 21, 1793 by J.P. Scheck, from the District Registration Commission of the local parish (ex commissione R.D. [Districtus Registrationis] parochi loci).
