Upset in Charleston

There were two masters, and three experts, and when the 1995 Snowstorm finished, none of them were in first place. Instead, first place was taken by A-Player Mike Williams. Mike won his first four games, including a defeat of Georgia master Rex Blalock in Round 4, and so was able to afford a draw with Doug Holmes in the final round. Holmes could have won the event by winning, but couldn't do it, and so finished in a tie for second at 4-1. Along with him were Charleston master Matthew Morris, who played two draws along the way, and Pat Hart, who got one of the draws with Morris.

A total of 37 players entered the annual Charleston event.

Club Activity Picks Up Around State

Reports are coming in about club activity outside Charleston and Columbia. Wayne Williams has reestablished the Greenville club with an active format; it is meeting at the Bobby Pearse Recreation Center at 820 Townest St. Extension on Thursdays at 7:30. They are starting a rated round robin event at their regular club meetings. Williams can be contacted at 803-246-6363.

Robert Torbert is the president of the new Blue Ridge Chess Club in Anderson, meeting Thursday and Sunday nights at Anderson Billiards, 903 W. Park Dr. They are planning a variety of rated and unrated events. (803-231-9111)

The Spartanburg Chess Club has held several tournaments. David Garvey won the top section of both TechChess I (March 25) and TechChess II (April 22) with perfect 3-0 scores. David R. Williams won the Scholastic Section of TechChess I with a perfect score of 5-0, and he scored 3-1 in TechChess II. Curtis Cantrell won the nonrated section of TechChess I. David K. Williams and Bruce Dillenbeck directed.

The 1995 March Quads were held at the Spartanburg Club March 14 and 21. Spencer Mathews and Davy Williams (1995 S. C. middle school Champion) were section winners. In a blitz tournament on April 11 Mathews, Greg Frady, and David Garvey tied for first with 9 of 11 each.

6 in Mail Match

Six players have entered the 1995 S. C. Postal Chess Championship. Play is under way under the direction of Pat Hart.

RECORD TOTAL IN SCHOLASTICS

BY JOHN MCCRARY

No fewer than 73 players descended upon Columbia's Airport High School to contest the 1995 S.C. Scholastic Championships. That event thus became one of the largest chess tournaments, for any age of players, in our state's history.

Joe Patterson, Brent Bovay, and Paul Potulicki all went 4-0 to become the state high school co-champions. Patterson and Bovay were old rivals for high-school supremacy; but Potulicki was a new player entering his first event! Following these leaders were nine players with 3-1 scores: Jonathan Dowty, Shabeeb Tauhid, Stanley Puckett, Jonathan Puckett, Kevin Bathurst, John Sanda, James Roy, Michael New, and Buddy Martel. In all, 46 competed in the high-school championship.

The 17-player middle-school tourney was taken by David R. Williams with a 4-0 score. Sheeba Tauhid, Ian Goldberg, Michael Robinette, and Sean Strickland tied for second place.

For the first time, a separate tournament for elementary-school players was held. The ten-player field yielded three co-champions, all with 3-1 scores: Yusef Khalil, Jonathan Lisi, and Timmy Rankin. Parity was the rule in the event, as there were no perfect scores and no zero scores.

The continued growth of the scholastic program is evident in the improved quality of play at all levels. Of the 31 USCF memberships sold, 26 of them were Youth memberships, with Chess Life subscriptions. This is quite a change from the past, when most players insisted on free tournament memberships with no magazine. Later, when those memberships were eliminated, most players demanded the cheaper School Mates subscription even when that magazine was very age-inappropriate. The USCF has taken the position that chess literature provides as much enjoyment as playing, by giving players a sense of belonging to a worldwide organization with a rich history; hopefully, Chess Life exposure will aid the development of the hobby in interested youngsters.

Six high-school teams were represented, with the team score being based on the individual scores of its members. The result was a down-to-the-wire race for the team plaque, with Stratford winning it with an 11-5 record from its four players: Jonathan Dowty (3), Stanley Puckett (3), Jonathan Puckett (3), and Raymond Dowty (2). The other five teams all finished very close to that total; the teams were Wade Hampton, Saluda, the Governor's School for Science and Mathematics, Airport, and Sumter.

Special thanks, as always, go to the adult coaches who make scholastic chess a success. Dr. Clyde Smith, Michael Spohn, Wayne Williams, David Williams, Dean Roesner, Bill Corbett, and Curt Landrum all helped in the direction and organization of this event.

The hospitality of Airport High once again contributed immeasurably to the success of these tournaments, and to the many smiles on the faces of the participants.

David Garvey won the top section of TECHCHESS I a tournament held at Spartanburg Technical College on March 25, 1995. Davy Williams, a sixth-grader, was the top elementary player and Timmy Rankin, a third-grader, was the primary winner. Curtis Cantrell won the nonrated section.

by John McCrary

The overall growth of the USCF is apparent in South Carolina, which has now about 450 USCF members. That is presumably an all-time high; in the early 1960's, there were only 17 USCF members in this state!

Wayne Williams, our state's club development chairman, is busily building a database for our membership that will allow him to engage in various promotional activity. Wayne, together with Bill Corbett, is active in reviving the Greenville chess club and putting out its newsletter.

Here in Columbia, Bill Floyd is actively making a go of the new chess center. Donations and tournament profits are so far supporting the $250 monthly rent, but support is needed on an ongoing basis.

A welcome SCCA membership renewal was received from Cliff Hyatt, who has undergone a long convalescence. A very welcome visitor to the Columbia chess center recently was Dr. Jim Fant, one of the survivors of the Charlotte airplane crash last summer. Jim has fully healed from his injuries and still plays a strong game of chess.

I am in the process of seeking our site for this year's state championship. As you know, I had to find last year's site in a major hurry when our traditional, already-advertised, Tremont venue abruptly went out of business. This year, I will have more time to check out the whole metro area.

I had to change my home phone number to another unlisted one, when some undesirable obtained our old number; and a threatening call in a disguised voice was later left on our machine. I would rather not publish the new number; but anyone wishing to reach me may call one of the other state officers to get it.

The movie "Searching for Bobby Fischer" appeared recently (I think three times) on HBO. The video is now on sale by the USCF.

I mentioned in an earlier magazine the excellent selection of chess books at the giant Waldenbooks at the Columbiana Center (I-26 and Harbison Blvd). I have to add the "Books-A-Million" chain to the list of great places to shop for chess books. (One of their stores is located two parking lots over from the Columbiana.)

Joe Patterson, our state amateur champion and high school co-champion, has helped to publicize chess in Columbia media. An article about Joe appeared in The State, and another article in his high school newspaper. Yes, the papers sometimes do publish good news!

Controversy continues to rage at the national and international level about the planned reunification of the world championship next year. The FIDE finalists, Karpov and Kamsky, have signed a document questioning the reunification plans and demanding to be involved in the negotiations. Their motives are not hard to discern, if one has read their previous interviews and comments. Karpov has been a bitter foe of Kasparov not only for chess reasons; the two are prominent figures (on opposite sides) in their nation's ideological battles between democracy and communism. Karpov was clearly hoping that the PCA would self-destruct, and the idea of a joint venture of FIDE and the PCA is unpalatable to him for a number of reasons. Kamsky, by contrast, has strongly implied in previous publications that he thinks having two world championships may be great because of the extra money! His father, in one interview, said that they would "consider" a single world title if certain conditions were met!

The controversy has affected the USCF leadership, as I mentioned in our last issue, since the USCF cast the deciding vote in re-electing Campomanes and thereby supports the Kasparov-Campomanes proposal. There followed a rash of angry letters and columns protesting the USCF position, on the grounds that Kasparov and Campomanes had engaged in allegedly unethical activities in securing his re-election. I decided to enter the letter-writing frenzy by urging chess leaders to calm down, consider the issues in a different way, and work together pragmatically for the most important goals (particularly preserving the value of the world title).

Needless to say, I don't expect my views to prevail or even be audible in the raging storms of controversy. However, I feel some sense of ethical responsibility in all of this, since I authored the USCF's official position of endorsing a collaboration between the PCA and FIDE in achieving a unified title system. At the time I sponsored the motion stating that position last August, it was relatively non-controversial. It replaced a motion by a New England delegate that would have implied support for the PCA title. No one then could foresee that such a unification would be formally offered only four months later--much less the shocking re-entry of the "retiring" Campomanes back into the FIDE presidency! Yet, Kasparov's adamant insistence that he would not negotiate unification with any other FIDE president was a major factor in the Policy Board's vote. Thus, I feel a bit guilty when I read about the Board's being so strongly attacked.

Interestingly, I think the USCF's position may have been one of the earliest published calls for a FIDE-PCA collaborative unification of the world title. Although most chessplayers supported a single title, the general expectation was that either the FIDE or the PCA title would stand alone, after the other organization gave up its claim.

We hope to see you all at the S.C. Open and other events coming up!

The Editor's Page

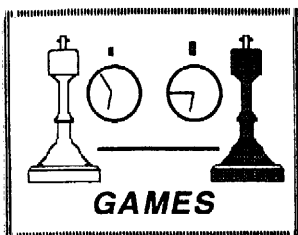

It is gratifying to see signs of an upturn in South Carolina chess. The number of tournaments is up; more importantly, they are covering a larger number of South Carolina cities. Spartanburg is very active; Greenville is coming back to life. The Columbia Chess Center has embarked on an ambitious program. All those interested in chess should support these activities; they are making it possible for you, and many others, to play the game without going far afield.

Much of this activity is supported by the expanded scholastic program. There are a number of dedicated volunteers who have taught chess to young people, and the results are a new generation of chess players in South Carolina. So far we have no young masters, but we have a group of young enthusiasts who will see to the future of the game here.

On another note, I'm sorry to report that this is my next to the last issue as Editor, for a while, at least. I've held this position on and off since the 1960's, and it's time for a bit of time off. Consequently, I'm advertising here for an editor to start work with the Fall, 1995, issue. The new editor will get custody of a chess font (Mac or Windows), and any of the Macintosh graphics that I've used. The pay is the highest possible for a writer: you get to see your words in print. I trust that among our readers is not only at least one that thinks he/she could do better, but who can in fact actually do better. Apply to John McCrary, or to me.

I hope to continue to submit occasional pieces, game annotations, etc., as I'm able and they are useful. I also hope to play more chess, and see more of you at tournaments. I greatly enjoy our chess community, and appreciate having been trusted by you with this position.

Lee Hyder

This issue starts with an example of how not to defend the Stonewall, and a few suggestions. It's from the South Carolina High School Championship; Patterson vs. Puckett.

1 d4 d5 2 e3 Nf6 3 Bd3 Nc6

Unusual; but this has been recommended as an easy equalizer if followed up correctly.

4 f4 e6??

Almost anything is better. Black is voluntarily restricting his own pieces. The recommended line is 4--Nb4. Now 5 Be2 is met by the frightfully embarrassing Bf5, so Black wins the two bishops, and White has no attack left.

5 Nd2 Bd7 6 c3 Bd6 7 Ngf3 O-O

Although Black has no play, he doesn't have to castle into White's attack. He's safer in the middle, with the possibility of going to the queenside if the need arises.

8 O-O Qe7 9 Ne5 a6

Now White quite properly moves in the center.

10 e4! dxe4 11 Nxe4 Nxe4 12 Bxe4 Rb8

There are really no good defenses, but this is no defense at all.

13 Rf3 a5 14 Bxh7+

The standard culmination of this kind of attack.

14--Kxh7 15 Rh3+ Kg8 16 Qh5

And mates next move.

We also have a game from the Spartanburg Club's Magazine The Rook File, with notes by David Williams. It's from a match: Williams vs. Greg Frady. 1 e4 e5 2 g3 Nc6 3 Bg2 g6 4 Nc3 Bg7 5 e3 (e4 is also playable here) Nge7 6 Nge2 O-O 7 O-O f5 8 d4 (White responds to the wing attack by striking back in the center.) d6 9 d5 Nb8 10 e4 Nd7 11 Bg5 h6 12 Be3 Nf6 13 h3 (Offering a temporary pawn sacrifice to stop Ng4, which would harrass the B on e3.) --fxe 14 g4! c6?!

(Perhaps g5 followed by Ng6 better meets the needs of the position.) 15 Ng3 cxd 16 cxd Kh7 (Black risks exposing his K as part of a deep plan to attack on the K-side.) 17 Ngxe4 Neg8 18 Nb5 (Now the drawback of 14--c6 becomes apparent. White can dominate play on the Q-side.) Nxe4 19 Bxe4 Qh4?!

(This enterprising move almost works, but better is Nf6 with a defensible, if passive, position.) (Black might consider a6 here too. Ed.) 20 Bg2 Nf6 21 f3 (The key to White's K-side defense.) (The threat was Bxg4. Ed.) h5 22 Qd2 (Better is probably Qe1, and after the exchange of queens, White can take control of the c-file with a winning endgame.) (Bf2 is ok, too. Ed. Now follows a time-scramble.)

hxg 23 fxg e4 24 Bf2 Qh6 25 g5 Qh5 26 gxf6 Bxf6 27 Bg3 Bxh3 28 Bxh3 Qxh3 29 Qh2 Qxh2+ 30 Bxh2 Bxb2 31 Rxf8 Rxf8 32 Re1 a6 33 Re2 axb5 34 Rxb2 e3

Black's flag fell, one move short of time contro. Even though a piece down, Black should be able to draw this position without much difficulty.

(How's that again? I'd love to play the White side and see how it's done. For example, 35 Bxd6 Rd8 36 Bc5 Rxd5 37 Bxe3. Now the Black pawns are absolutely useless. White should be able to win them all. The only trap is trading off rooks too early and getting an endgame with B and the wrong color RP. Ed.)

Correspondence

I'm looking to play postal chess with someone from South Carolina. It's one of the few states from which I haven't yet had an opponent.

I'd like to play two postal games with a South Carolina player. I'm willing to have them rated by CCLA if you like, and I'm even willing to let my opponent choose the openings. My CCLA rating is about 1800.

If someone is interested, they should contact me at the following address:
