

National Resources for Community Health Works (CHWs)

These national organizations and platforms provide training, policy updates, networking, and tools for CHWs across the United States.

Resource	Description	Website
NACHW- National Association of Community Health Workers	They provide toolkits, resources, support for policy & advocacy, networking, professional development, and a platform for CHWs to connect.	https://nachw.org/
CHW Central	Offers research, case studies, tools, news, webinars. Good for staying up to date, finding best practices, and connecting with others doing similar work.	CHW Central A global resource for and about Community Health Workers chwcentral.org
CHW Document Resource Center	Great if you want to see what's happening in different states, learn how policy is changing, and find examples to guide advocacy or program design.	https://chronicdisease.org/utilizing-the-community-health-workers-document-resource-center/
CDC- Resources for Community Health Workers	Useful evidence-based guidance, training resources (including for chronic disease, prevention), and materials to support CHWs in their roles.

These resources can help CHWs stay connected, informed, and supported at the national level.