Dr Christina N. Zdenek, BSc, MPhil, PhD

Scientific Authority and Media Contact, Save Woogaroo Forest Group

Dr Christina is a conservation scientist with over 25 years of field and scientific experience. She currently runs the national Urban Birds Program at BirdLife Australia, working to prevent bird extinctions and keep common birds common. She works in a team at Birdlife campaigning against owl-killing rat poisons (SGARs), and helping people support birds in their suburbs. Her instagram is @NaturePositiveLiving, where she's inspiring habitat gardeners everywhere. On the weekends, she co-runs the Australian Reptile Academy, training people on the safe handling of Australia's highly venomous snakes.

"We are at a tipping point for the conversation of many species. Losing an area so significant as Woogaroo Forest will decimate local populations of native species and I believe it could lead to the extinction of a number of species."
